CROWD SPIRIT ACTION

When getting crowned by last year's queen, Mercedes Thompsom, Sarah Kim (05) had an expression of utter surprise. "It feels good to know how much people like me and look up to me," she said.

As displayed by the score board the Titans conquered over the Warriors. This goes to show that Titans can come together as one and defeat the odds. "We all knew we were going to win this one, we came together and beat Mission," stated Riles Nganga (06).

hear OLYMPUS ROAR

Imagine being at the most exciting game of the year and sitting in a crowd screaming until your voice is gone. You hear the band playing, cheerleaders yelling "GOOOO TITANS," while you're stuffing your face with nachos. These were some things that happened at one of the biggest nights . Homecoming was filled with smashing yet anticipating times. "I expected homecoming to be fun, exciting, and entertaining," exclaimed Amber Bown (05). The football game was very victorious. Both JV and Varsity teams tried their hardest against the Mission Warriors and ended up winning the game. "I knew we were going to win the game because it was a slumper," said Gabriel Lambey(06). During half-time the queen was announced. The court came out one-by-one in a classic hot rod escorted by two choppers. "I was so nervous when we were driving up to the stage. Butterflies were running through my stomach," stated Edaline Sarmiento (06). During half-time, spirit week winners were also announced. Seniors ended up taking the win for over all spirit, but the juniors won the dance and murals. Overall, everyone had great spirit and pride during homecoming. Everyone will remember homecoming and the excitement that took place throughout the school year.

"I felt honored being nominated for queen. It was a privilege." Samantha Kiggins (05)

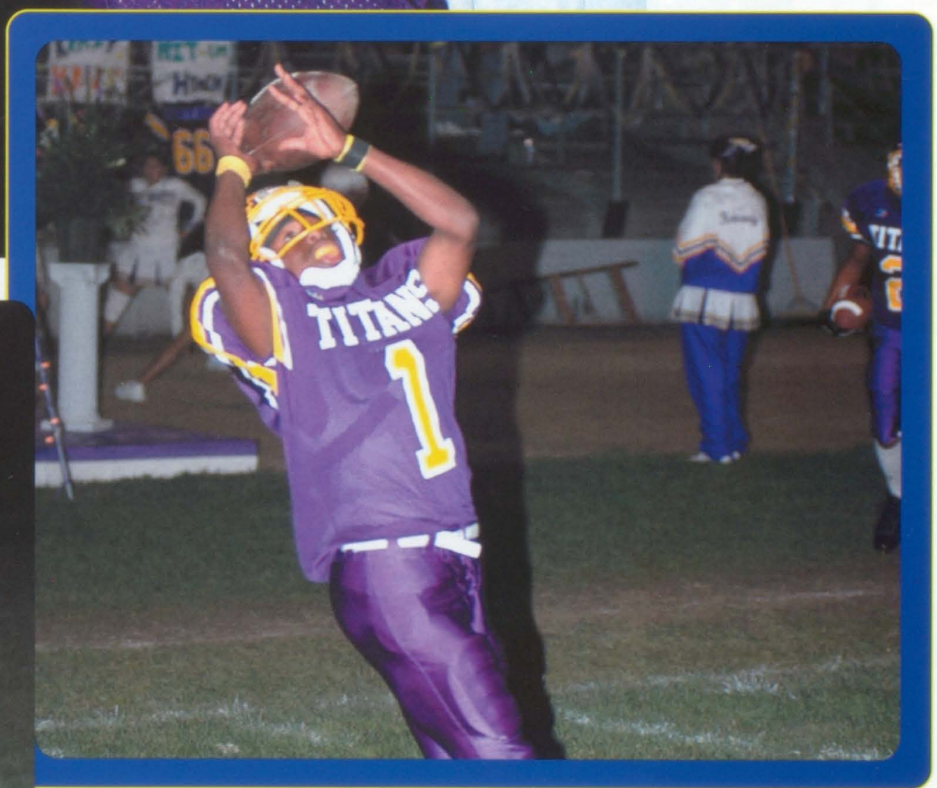
"It was very special to me that I was nominated for queen. Im glad I got to experience it." Edaline Sarmiento (05)

"I'm grateful that people will remember me for my accomplishments, I felt honored to be nominated." Jackie Chan (05)

"It was a blast being part of the court. I had lots of fun." Benjamin Gonzales (05)

"I didn't expect to be nominated, but I'm glad I was chosen in the court." Isheen Herrera (05)

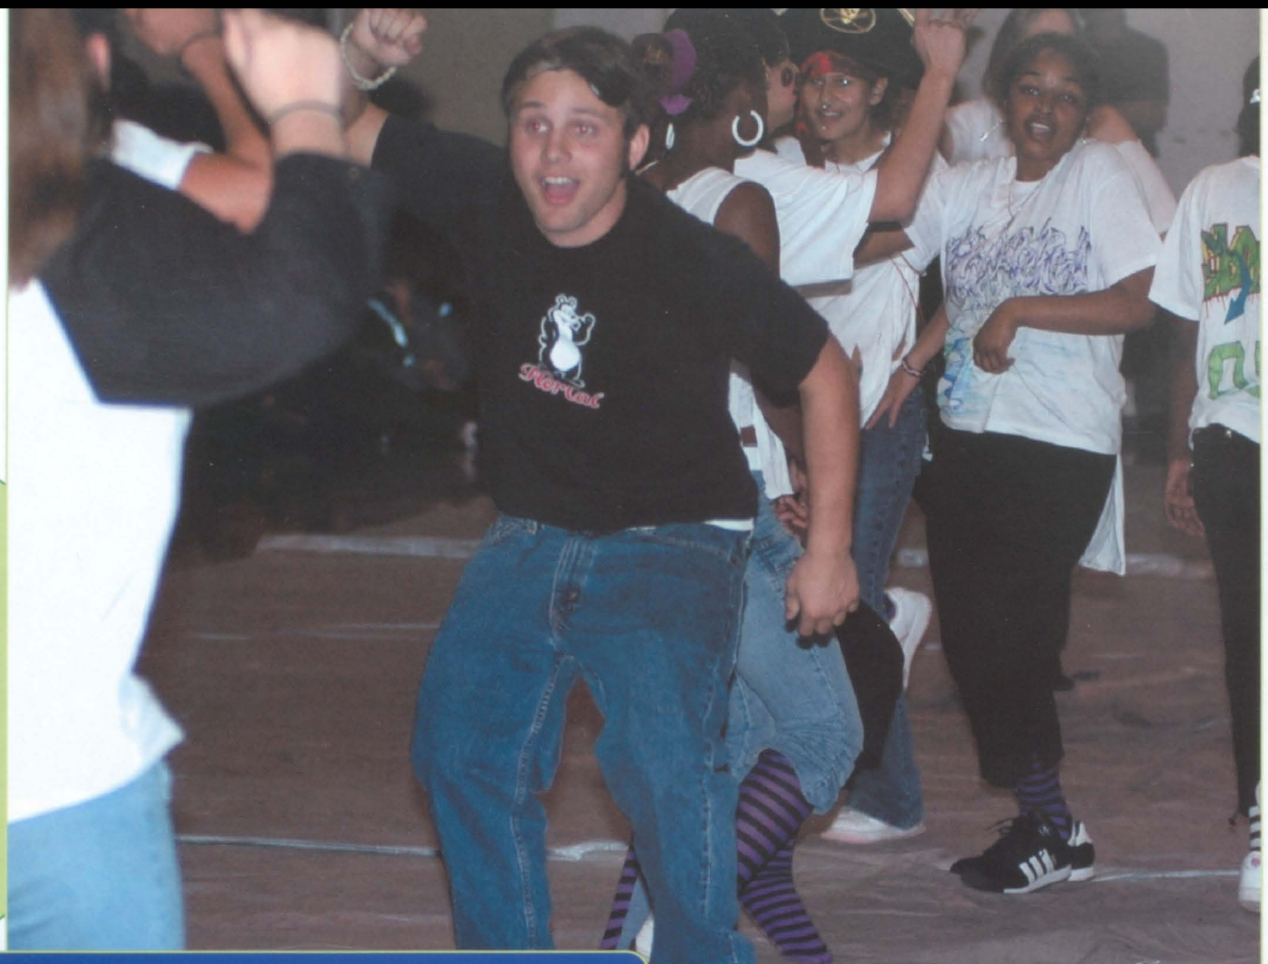
Kaulana Lee and Sarah Kim reign over our kingdom. They were both amazed that they got king and queen. "I'm glad that I got king, when they announced my name I was in a daze," said Kaulana Lee (05).



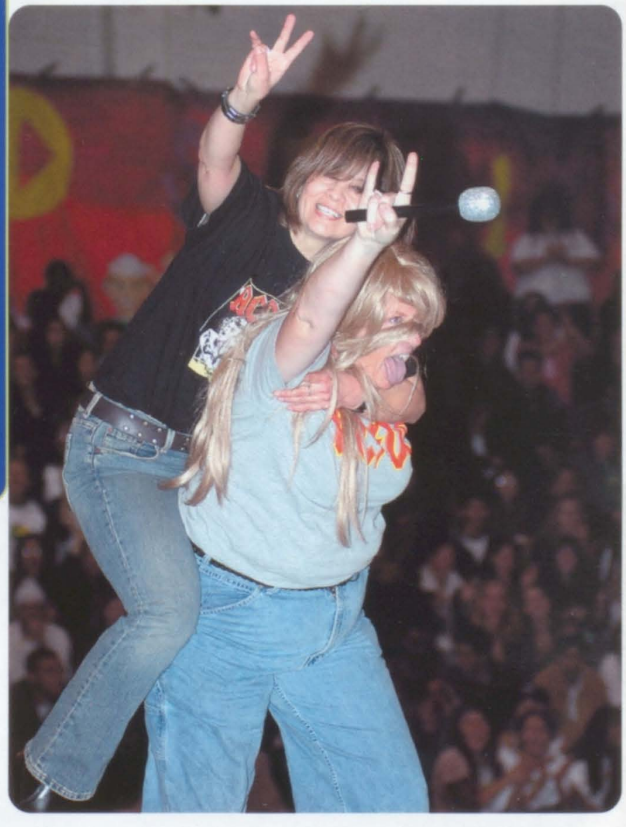
After shaking off one of missions players, Armando Teixeira (06) runs down he field and tries to get a touchdown." I had a strong feeling we were going to beat Mission," said Teixeira.

Riles Nganga (06) tries to catch a pass to gain yards for the team. The team was victorious and won 35-0.

Benjamin Gonzalez (05) gets his groove on with his fellow shipwrecked seniors. "I remember it like it was yesterday. It was automatic, supersonic, hypnotic, and funky-fresh," said Gonzalez.



After weeks of hearing about the rally, the freshmen finally get to see what homecoming is all about. These freshmen cheered and watch with anticipation as their fellow classmen danced.



The teachers danced with classic songs and jammed through Mr. Yee's rendition of shebangs. Also getting loose and showing some school spirit, Mrs. Sparkman carried Mrs. Padilla across the gym.

ONE SPIRIT ONE VOICE

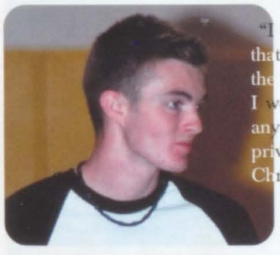
The Jammin' Juniors did their dance, as Jessica Sandoval (06) and Jeanette Leon (06) showed their spirit by getting to it down on the floor. All those hours of practice sure paid off.

DJ Claude Quebec (06) and Technology Commissioner Russel Price (05) show off their skills as they mix music to get everybody moving.

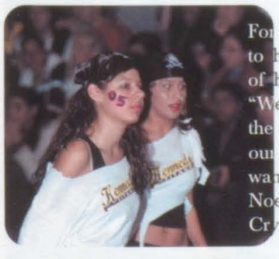
As the student body filled the gym, they awaited anxiously for the big kick-off of this exciting event. "Homecoming rally is a good way in bringing everyone together," said Evelyn Maritinez (06).

EQUALS ONE SCHOOL

For weeks, the seniors practice after school to perfect their dance. "After weeks of practice and preparation I'm so glad that we finally pulled it off." Tiffany Tate (05)



"I was disappointed that we didn't have the senior walk-in, but I wouldn't trade it for any of our senior priviledges." Chris Davis (05)



For some, they joined to have remembrance of highschool life. "We participated in the dance since this is our last year and we wanted to have fun." Noemi Guzman(05) Crystal Leon (05)

It was that time of the year that all the classes came together as one. You heard the spirit of each class as they shouted their hearts out at the 2004 Homecoming Rally. Each class showed their spirit as they competed in dances, skits, and murals. Shipwreck Seniors started off the dance competition of the classes. Amber Bown (05) had this to say about their dance, "I enjoyed helping choreograph this year's dance." The Jammin' Juniors jammed to the music as they danced their way through the rally. Jeannette Leon (06) said, "I was happy that I joined the dance this year." Dominic Ahmed (07) said, "This is my first year of dancing in the rally and I really enjoyed it. Freshmens In Black blasted their way through the rally. Tara Alinaya (08) had this to say,"It was a rush dancing in the rally, I will surely do it again next year." Nobody sang the national anthem, rather Mr. Sterling led the band class and made great rhythm as they played the Star-Spangled Banner. It continued on with the introduction of the volleyball and football team. The teachers showed off their spirit by cutting loose and showing it through their dance. The event ended with everybody pumped up and ready to cheer at the Homecoming game the following day.

"This is the one part of the year where everyone works together." Sarah Lajoie (06).

"I was glad to show my spirit for my class." Erica Dominguez (07).

"I thought this year was a lot more organized." Yavil Vazquez (07).

"It's a dirty job, but someone has to do it," said Ashley Nunes (05) while hanging up t-shirts with mud foot prints on them for the seniors murals.

With their pirate gear on, Chelsy Ryker (07) and Lauren Acker (07), lead the chanting when students started to fill the quad.

Amber Bown (05) leaded her peers to their dance. With the difficulty of the dance, the seniors formed a bond. In sync with Amber, Tiffany Tate (05) and Alexis Lindsey (05) show off what the class of '05 is all about.

"Since it was my last spirit week, I paid more attention than any other year prior."
Jennifer Czerwinski 05)

"Yeah spirit week was ok, I liked the rally the most."
Laroya Scoggins (07)

"I like chanting with the rest of the classes, it's exciting."
Jackie Chan (05)

Many sophomores decided to get their hair sprayed. After eating lunch Delia Torres (07) decides that she too wanted to get her hair sprayed.

Bored in the morning from decorating the school, Russell Price (05) decided to entertain the Seniors with a little bit of music, "It only took me about 10 minutes to set it all up."

Showing some school spirit, Shastina Lopez (07) wears her purple and yellow Lakers sweater, and matching converse, while talking to her friend.

It was a pirates affair between the sophomores of the caribbean and the shipwrecked seniors. Both classes shared the same theme but with different angles. No type of disagreement could ruin the school spirit for the seniors and sophomores. Many seniors were worried that one of there murals were ruined when it got wet and ripped. Fortunately, they didn't panic, they kept their heads held high. All they had to do was improvise. At the beginning, production was going slow, but in the end everything came together and went alright. "When stuff was going on concerning spirit week, I didn't find out about it, until it was over and done with. Even though I didn't help they still did pretty good," stated Leshae Vance (05). Murals were a major problem during spirit week. "I'm going to be in the dance and I will also go to the overnighter, where everyone will help with the murals," stated Erica Dominguez (07). In a way everyone participated in spirit week in an odd way. "I just wanted to paint my hair so I could show some sort of school spirit," exclaimed Delia Torres (07). The weather was a major factor on the sophomores day. "Yesterday it rained and we went up to see if it we could tape them up there but the whole roof was filled with rain water," said Robbie Porter (07). Some people decided to paint their hair, or just wore their class shirts to show off their school spirit. They did all they could do to represent their class and made people wish they were the class of 07' and 05'!

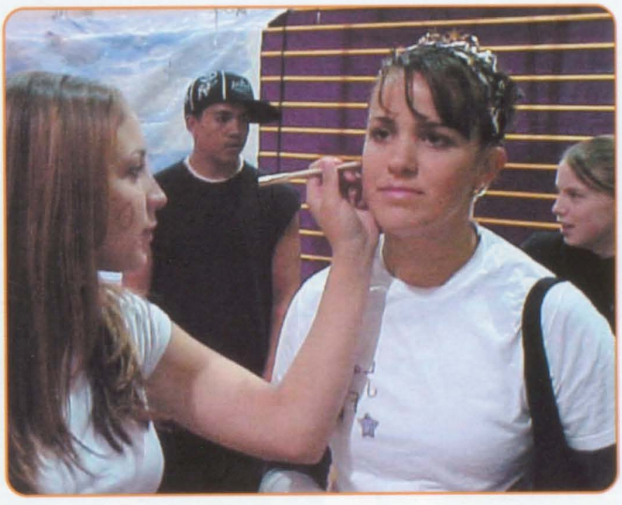
On the CARIBBEAN

When told that the sophomores and freshman had drawn on "The graffiti wall," the seniors were pretty upset. "Last year everyone drew on it, so I don't see the big deal," Susana Figueroa (07) said after finding out that some of her peers were upset. "The wall" is another way to show different classes artistic side, instead of the ordinary mural. If you think about it, "The graffiti wall" symbolizes spirit week in a weird way.



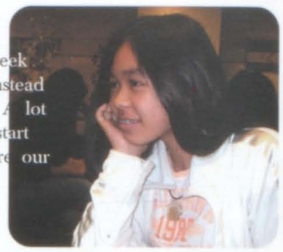
Done from decorating the gym with the sophomore's mural Laura Siedentopf (07), and Kim Lyell (07) decide that they should also decorate themselves to show a little bit more school spirit. Kim pulls out her eyeliner and starts to write 07' on her friend's cheek. Above is Noemi Guzman (05) hanging fish.

IT'S A PIRATE'S AFFAIR

"We get to show what we're really about. On this special week, our efforts and pride are shown." Amos Song (06)

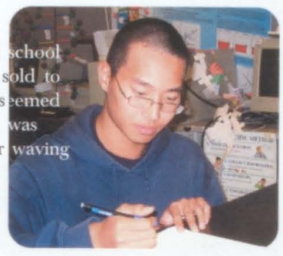
"Spirit week is when everyone represents their class. We all have to try to look good." Jessica Chhi (08)

"It's an oppurtunity to see what each class has to offer. The better the murals, the better the class looks." Samantha Ojascastro (08)



"Preparing for spirit week was a group project instead of a whole-class thing. A lot of people decided to start helping just days before our day."
Veronica Wu (08)

"We finished most of our decorations beforehand, but there were always last minute details. We added spray paint to make our murals look even better."
Lita Vo (06)



Many purple and gold school pride accessories were sold to staff and students. "It seemed like every other person was wearing a shiny halo or waving a flag around."
Jerry Lin (08)

When people walked onto the school campus and heard chanting coming from the quad, they rushed to see what was going on. The unbelievably enormous murals splashed with colors decorated the gym, rather than the quad. At lunch the crowd of people in the gym pushed each other back and forth as everyone tried to watch the attention-grabbing display in the middle. This amazing display of character only happens once a year. Spirit week may have seemed easy-going and fun, but there was a lot going on behind the scenes. A lot of hard work went into preparing for the last week of October when each class showed their school spirit and pride for their class. "We were all really excited to make our murals," said Robert Lira (06). "But when it came down to actually making them it was really difficult." The nonstop calls for paper, tape, paint, and paperweights were endless. People pulled others aside and asked to learn the dance routine last minute. "I had to teach the same moves over and over. I wished everyone would have just came to practice at the same time so I could teach them all together" said Tara Alinaya (08). While spirit week was fun for many, it was a painful job for others. After performing their skits, the Jammin' Juniors and the Freshmen in Black held dance-offs that many people participated in. It was a drastic change to perform and have murals in the gym due to the bad weather. Even though there were many hardships involved in Spirit Week, the outcome was cheerful. It was all worth it because in the end, everyone showed how proud they were to be Titans.

teen spirit CAN YOU SMELL IT?

"I love the way our class shows spirit. We were so creative with our murals. What other class would use fabric on them? Us!" said Natalie Schmitz (06). Using spirit fingers to impress the crowd, Janna Pasta (08) participates in a crazed dance-off in the gym. Both Juniors and Freshmen held danceoffs after performing their skits.

During the rally, enthusiastic Juniors Katrina Belda (06), Monique Baptista (06) and Kesha Hughes (06) hold up their signs of class pride. "We made these signs half an hour before the rally started. We had a couple of boxes left so we came up with that idea," said Katrina. All the classes showed their spirit on their day and in the rally.

COOPERATION CREATIVITY

In the gym, Christine Lynn (06) helps patch up a collage mural filled with famous artists of the past and present before hanging it up on the wall. The Juniors also had a mural decorated with fabrics bought from the thrift store.

Showing off their shiny centerpiece, Tara Alinaya (08) and Rafaela Fontanilla (08) wait in the gym for students to come in. The Freshmen used a cart and foil to make their centerpiece.

Claiborne Sibley (06), Vanessa Haro (06), and Andrea Santillan (06) perform the Jammin' Juniors' dance routine they've been working on for the past few months. The class of '06 surprised everyone as they took their class shirts off in the middle of their dance and revealed personalized tops underneath.

Trendsetter alert

"Yeah I think I'm a trendsetter because everybody looks up to the seniors to dress and stuff," said Randy Noonan (05).

"Yes I think I can be a trendsetter because a lot of people compliment me on what I wear," said Amanda Bitting (07).

"No I don't believe I'm a trendsetter because I follow other trends," said Qase Hamid (06).

"No I don't think I'm a trendsetter because I have my own style. Even though I get a lot of compliments, people don't copy me," said Alicia Prado (08).

Trend Watchers

We was many new as well as old comeback trends. With new trends like prep and urban, and the comebacks like retro, old school hip-hop, and 80's, everyone had an individual look. The word trends didn't have to be about the cool typical lifestyle. It was about the real you on how you really were, acted, and felt. It also showed your individual self. "I have my own unique style, and I wear what I like, I'm unique but not a trendsetter," said Jordan Varela (06). We saw the looks that were in, but may loose them in the future. Many people thought trends only revolved around clothing, but we also had different ideas on video games, TV shows, colors and a lot more. "I've always liked the color lilac, and I decided to paint my room that color," commented Susana Figueroa (07). Jewelry was another spectacular trend. "You have to have the two ear piercings, big clothes (I can't have any tight fitting clothes) and stay 'Air Forced' out" said Marquez Robinson (07). Every year, trends came and went. So whether it was urban or prep, hip-hop or punk trends, they would remain forever.

Jana Warren, the new BSU advisor, came from Seattle, Washington. Having taught for a while, this teacher had the experience and knew how to teach; a lot of the students were able to relate to her. Being very young herself, she had the ability to talk to the students in their language, a technique only granted to those of experience.

The usual things came and went. There were new lockers that were promised and excitement followed until the arrival. But when the year started, faces dropped at the disappointment of the new lockers. "I can barely fit my backpack, let alone my books in these lockers," said Jimena Diez (05). The students expected not only new lockers, but also better ones. The four lockers not being big enough to stuff all the books given to the students, made the excitement flutter out the window and made the students hearts heavy. Along with the lockers, there was a new attendance system that was assigned that made cutting classes a lot harder. Also, the seniors had to attend senior project everyday; the year that was supposed to be the easiest soon became difficult. "I got one of my first detentions a while ago and I couldn't figure out when they were. Everyone I asked gave me different times and dates," said a frustrated Aisha Wahab (05). Detention days changed and unfortunately the Responsibility Center came back. Classes like Marine Biology made its comeback after having been cancelled the previous year due to lack of student sign ups. "I love Mrs. Welch and she is so sweet to her students, I think this might be one of my favorite classes this term," noted Doron Johnson (06). But the biggest change were made when we received new teachers. Now, with these new teachers and the students were left with the memories. Change happened all the time, but is "out with the old and in with the new" really good?

Have you ever liked something so much that you couldn't live without it? Some students couldn't live without cell phones, make-up, friends, and music. They may have felt that they were obsessed. "Getting my hair done perfectly is what I'm obsessed with. I can spend the most time doing my hair in the morning," said Elizabeth Rodriguez (06). Having an obsession could have been trouble sometimes because if you couldn't get what you wanted, you thought you were going crazy. "I'm obsessed with soccer, because I like to play it and I am very good at it," said Ernesto Quiroz (07). Having an obsession over something required total dedication over what you were obsessed with, you can't function without first doing what your obsessed with. "Art is my obsession, I can't live without art," said Daniel Valluzzi (06). There were positive and negative obsessions some that could lead to anger, violence, and sickness. It was better not to get to obsessed over something, do it without going to the extreme. "Obsessing over a person is bad. You become way too attached to them," stated Gabriella Medina (07). People wonder why others have these obsessions. Well nowadays, there is a plethora of things that can cause people to want to eat, sleep, and breathe it. Some have become so blinded with love for something, that they swear it was as essential as the air we breathe in. "The phone is my obsession, because it's necessary," stated Silvia Montero (06). If you thought about something constantly that was quite unnecessary for life, that was definitely an obsession that was beyond control. An optimistic tip, obsession was an honest and emphasized yearning for that special someone or something.

Money wasn't an issue that students were very concerned about. Most didn't care where it came from and could care less if it didn't grow on trees. "Having a job has taught me the value of money because now that I have to take the time and energy to make it; I think before I spend," said Surjit Kaur (05). Many adolescents never really learned the true meaning of hard work and dedication until they got a job. They never really cared where or how their parents got the money they spent everyday, as long as it was there for their convenience. Everyday they nagged and complained about how they needed money or had nothing to wear. All that stopped the moment they earned their own cold hard cash. Most common jobs pay teens around $150-$300 every two weeks and employed them to work mostly Fridays through Sundays. The common jobs that students had ranged from were fast food restaurants to the bank. The late hours and weekends didn't sound so appealing, then why did so many students have labor jobs? "I always hate having to give up my fun weekends to work, but it's all worth it," said Tiffany Gaspie (06). People all had some personal needs that didn't really seem like an essential necessity in life to others. "The main reason I have a job is because I have to pay for my car, gas, and some personal things I have here and there," said Harvey Mestist (05). Whether it was boredom or personal reasons like making some extra money, or saving up for college for the future, getting a job was an idea that was spreading among the student body. It was the thing to do.

KEEP ON moving

BEEP! BEEP! BEEP! It was 6:00 a.m. and it was time to start your day. By 7:00 a.m. you were on the way to school, whether you walked, rode, drove, or skated, getting there would be stressful. Cars are expensive, walking is tiring, and trying to find a ride was hectic, but somehow you had to get there. By the end of the school year, students had traveled approximately 720 miles, to and from school. James Martinez (06) said, "Most of the time I walk to school, but sometimes I get a ride if it is raining, and then I walk home. It usually takes me about 25 minutes, and I walk about half a mile each way." Students that drove to school had to take into consideration car insurance, parking permit fees, and gas prices. The average gas station charged $1.95 for regular grade, $2.05 for premium grade, and $2.15 for supreme. With prices like that, riding a bike to school sounded like a better idea. "I like riding my bike to school because I get fresh air, and it only takes me about 10 minutes to ride two and a half miles. But sometimes I have to get a ride if it is raining," said Ahmad Ashufta (08). "Sometimes it is hard to find a way to school. If my parents aren't ready when we have to leave, my girlfriend's mom gives me a ride," said Josh Lema (07). Well now it is 2:35, time to go home, so how did you plan on getting there? Car? Bus? Bike? Train? Well, either way you look at it, you had to get there using some form of transportation.

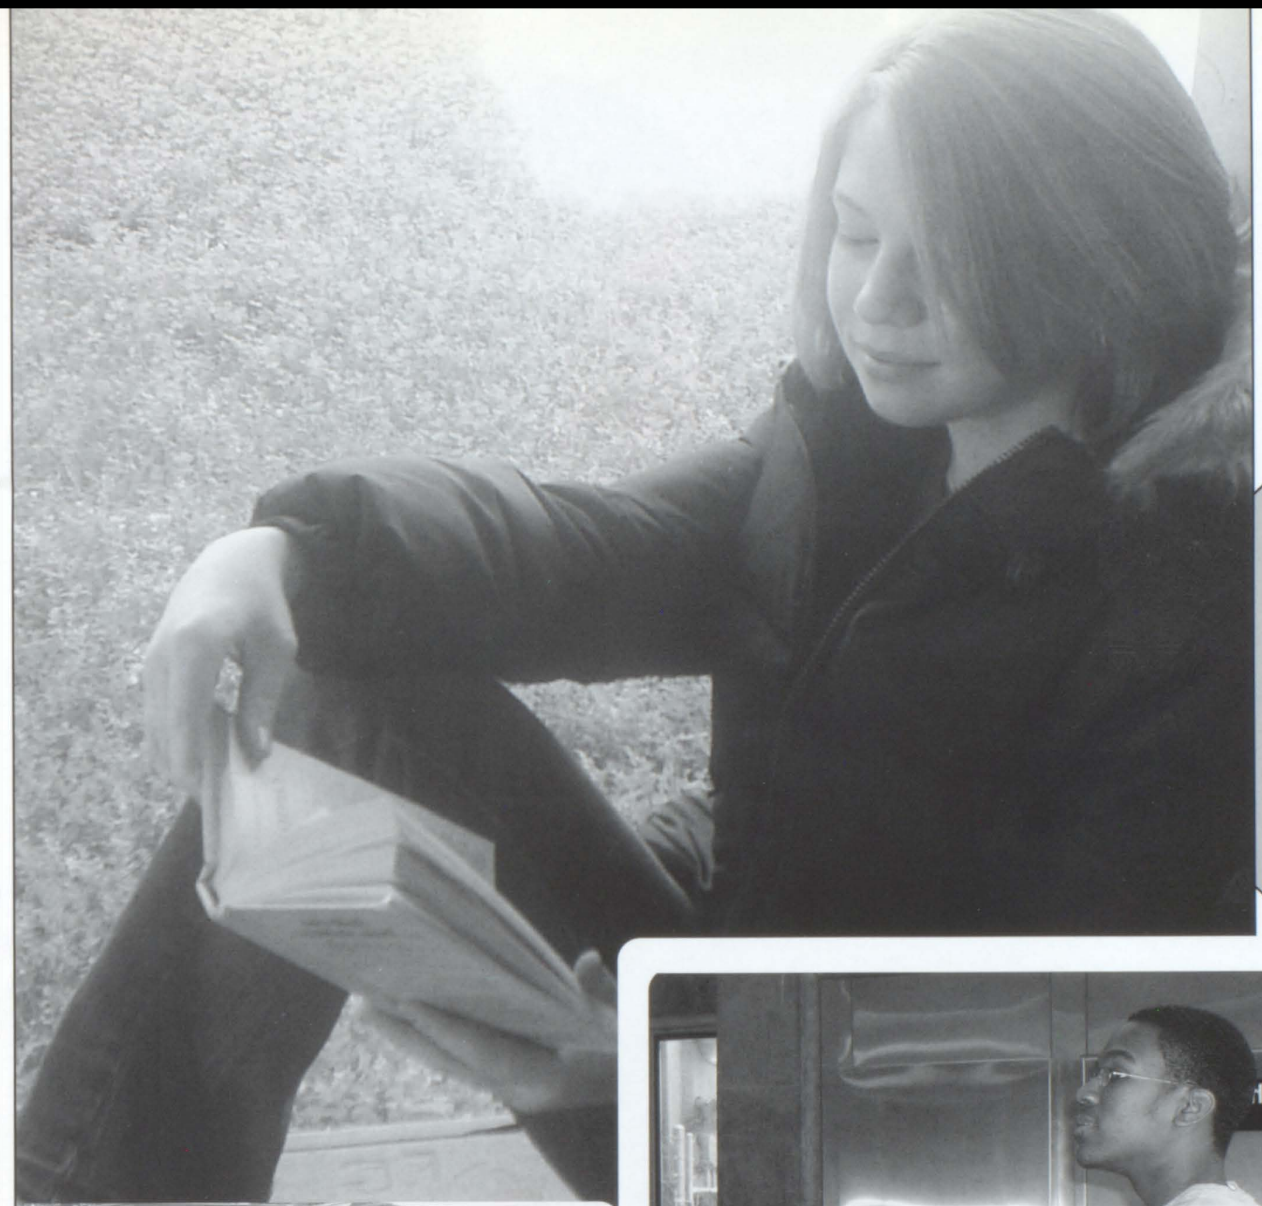
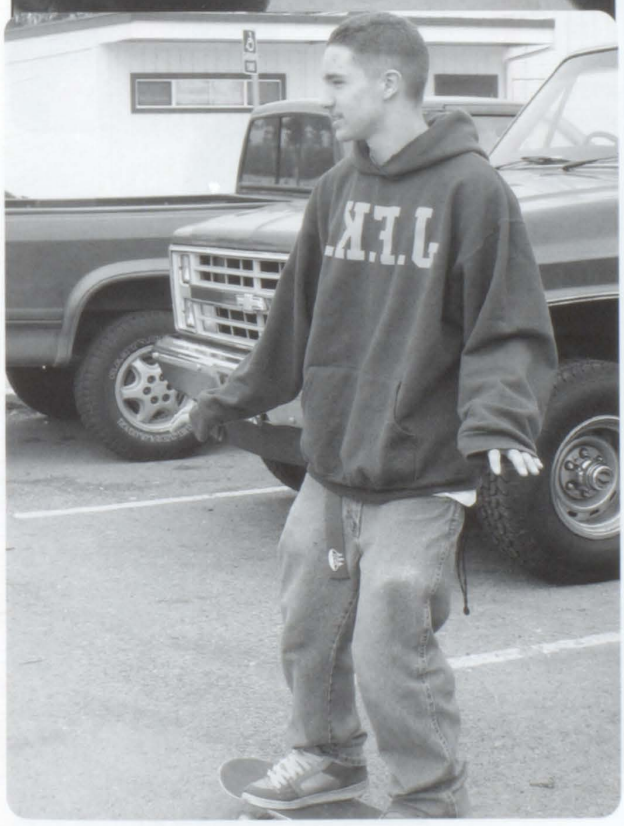
"My dream way of getting to school would be flying. Flying because it would be fast." Jessica Betancourt (08)

"Teleportation would be the best transportation because it sounds like fun and I would get to sleep in." Kenneth Smith (07)

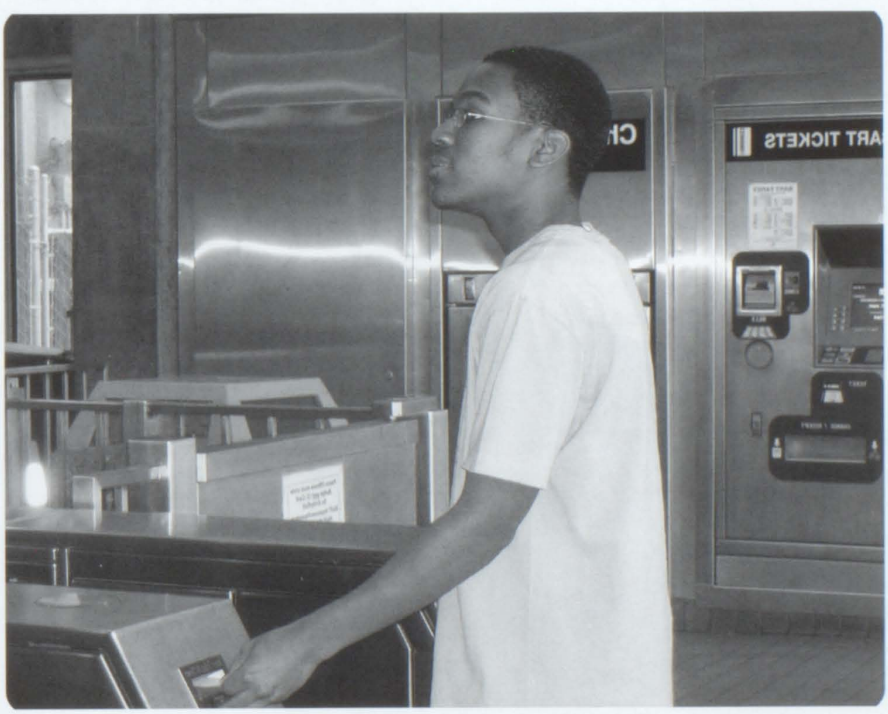
"I don't have my license so if I could drive, my car would be an Acura NSX." Jessica Gong (07)



"My mommy drives me to school everyday, except for Wednesday. Then I stroll on home with my friends Susana and Chelsea," said Katie Kimmel (07) as she reads a book.

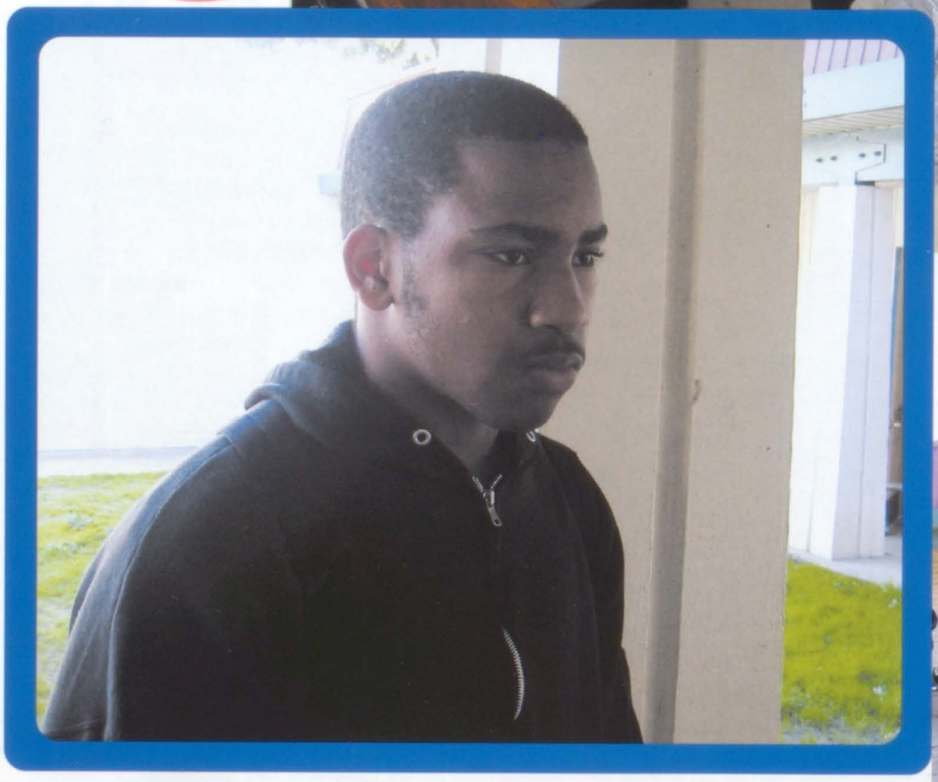


While skating through the parking lot Andrew Dennison (07) said, "I like skateboarding to school, because it is faster, and a lot better than walking. It usually takes me about 10 minutes to go a mile and a half to school."



Waiting for the machine to take his ticket, Claiborne Sibley (06) explains how he gets home everyday. "For the past three years, I have been taking a long journey home! I would take the bus to the BART and take the BART to the Hayward station. There, I would wait for my dad until he felt like picking me up. Now I don't have to wait because I drive myself."

Rachel Reyes (05) sits and thinks about where she wants to go during lunch or after school. "I like to go to my friends house because there's always something for me to do there."



"The only place where I like to hang out is the basketball court playing basketball and talking to friends," said Brandon Dupart (08).

"During lunch, I'm not the type of person who just hangs out at one spot and say that's my hangout spot. I just usually walk around with some friends to see what's new with them and what they are up to," commented Doron Johnson (06).

CHILLIN' OUT AND ABOUT

Sandra Torres (08), sits at her computer waiting for lunch to start so her and her friends can go and hang out at their hang out spot. "My friends and I go and hang out over by the quad because we just like to sit, eat our lunch, and talk about what's new."

At right, Stephanie Montantes (08) waits for her friends to go hang out. "I hang out in the quad with my friends because we don't have any cars to drive us around."

While reading a book, Janet Aviles (06) waits for lunch to start so she can go and hang out with her friends. "I like to walk around and talk to my best friend Tiffany. Sometimes we will be at our lockers talking about many new things."

can we KICK IT?

"Sometimes my friends and I drive around town finding something to get in to. If we can't find anything, we just hang out in the car." Yavil Vazquez (07).

"I don't really have a hangout spot at school. Most of the time, I just go home during lunch to eat a snack and get relaxed." Reggie Swan (05).

"At lunch, I go and meet up with all my friends and get something to eat." Jeremy Goldberg (06).

A hangout spot was a place one felt the most comfortable. "When I'm at school I mostly hangout at the benches over by the gym, otherwise my friends and I just walk around when we are bored," said Rhonda Cash (06). Most found it hard to believe, but school was one of the top hang out spots outside of school! "One of my favorite hangout spots is in the video room with Mr. Martinez because that is where I usually go to watch my work," said Jacob Baptista (05). There were many hangout spots here on the campus, but there was more around town. Whether it was the library, the mall, Century 25 or the park down the street, there was always a place to hang out. Bhavna Bala (05) stated, "Sometimes I like to hang out at the park and feel like a kid again. My favorite part of the park is the swing." One's hangout spot didn't have to be at school or outside of home. It could have been right in the comfort of your own house. "I like hanging out at my house because it's where I feel most comfortable. I can truly be myself there," stated Harleen Johal (07). The two most popular hangouts with students was the movies or the mall. There, students were able to meet other students around the city and enjoy themselves. Lovepreet Modhara (06) said, "I like to go to the theatre to catch a movie with my friends. It gives us time to bond and be together without worrying about classes or our parents getting angry for how we are acting." Basically, where ever one had friends and family was where one hung out.

"Where I like to hang out is over by the amphitheater." Jenna Duncin (07)

"I hang out over at the benches in the quad with a couple of my friends." Courtney Christie (07)

"When there's nothing to do, I just go and hang out in video room." Jeremy Green (06)

Ashley Nunes (05) and Crystal Bruno (05) sell donuts for the senior class during brunch. "We sell the donuts in minutes, probably because they're only seventy five cents," said Bruno.

During lunch all the students race to the a la carte to be first to get their food. It was a busy day for the lunch ladies. They serve students food from the beginning of the lunch bell, to the last second of lunch.

Brunch is one of the most talkative times during the day. Everyone stands around just talking about what he or she might do later or what they did over the weekend. All in all, brunch is the best time to catch up with friends.

"During lunch I drive around with my friends and just have fun." Michael Anderson (07)

"I go off campus to eat lunch and hang out with friends to get away from school." Bridget Ford (06)

"I stay on campus hang out with friends, but sometimes I like to leave." Heather Lozano (05)

Whether it was a packed lunch from home, food from the cart, or hot fast food, everyone had the same thing on their mind, what they wanted to eat for lunch. Some people went off campus, some sat outside, and some found comfort in a classroom. During brunch there weren't as many choices. In the ten minutes for brunch, including passing period, it took five minutes to get through the line, then another two minutes to get to your locker, and three minutes to get to class, but no time to eat. "I don't usually go to the brunch line because it takes to long to get through, but the days I do go, I am always late to class," explained Cassi Mckean (05). During lunch everyone liked to get away from his or her teachers and classes. "I usually stay on campus for lunch, but other times I go off campus to 7-11 with my friends," said Armando Cervantes (07). Students tried to get away from the crazy lines that were there during brunch and lunch; therefore they got food from the vending machines. The vending machines offered a variety of snacks, from cookies, to chips, to trail mix; you could always find something to satisfy your taste bud. "I go to the vending machine because it has a better variety of snacks and its less expensive then the food carts," said Frankie Cortinouvous (06). On average a high school student spent around a hundred dollars a month! That's five dollars or more a day! Most of the food they had on the carts is three dollars. A high school student couldn't afford that. So whether one was a freshman or a senior, they all had their own ideas of fun for lunch or brunch.

You refuse to get all caught up in the whole popularity game and appreciate your alone time. There is only one problem: Spending so many hours all alone can get, well - a little lonely and boring, don't you think? You don't have to turn yourself into one of those party girls, but it is alot more fun when you can share some inner depths with like-minded friends who share the same interests as you do. Get out there and have some fun!

You enjoy being surrounded by all of your friends who like to have a blast - and if that happens to expand your social network, then that's great! But you do know what is really important to you. You steer clear of people who don't really notice or appreciate you when the party is over. It's better to be loved for who you are then to be liked for someone you aren't. Good for you dude!

You have reached new heights, but at what expense? The view from the top may be exhilarating, but it can also get pretty gruesome up there. If you find yourself actually looking down on your true friends (and the true you), then it might be time to look deep inside yourself and head back to steadier grounds and realize who you have become and see how it has effected the ones you love.

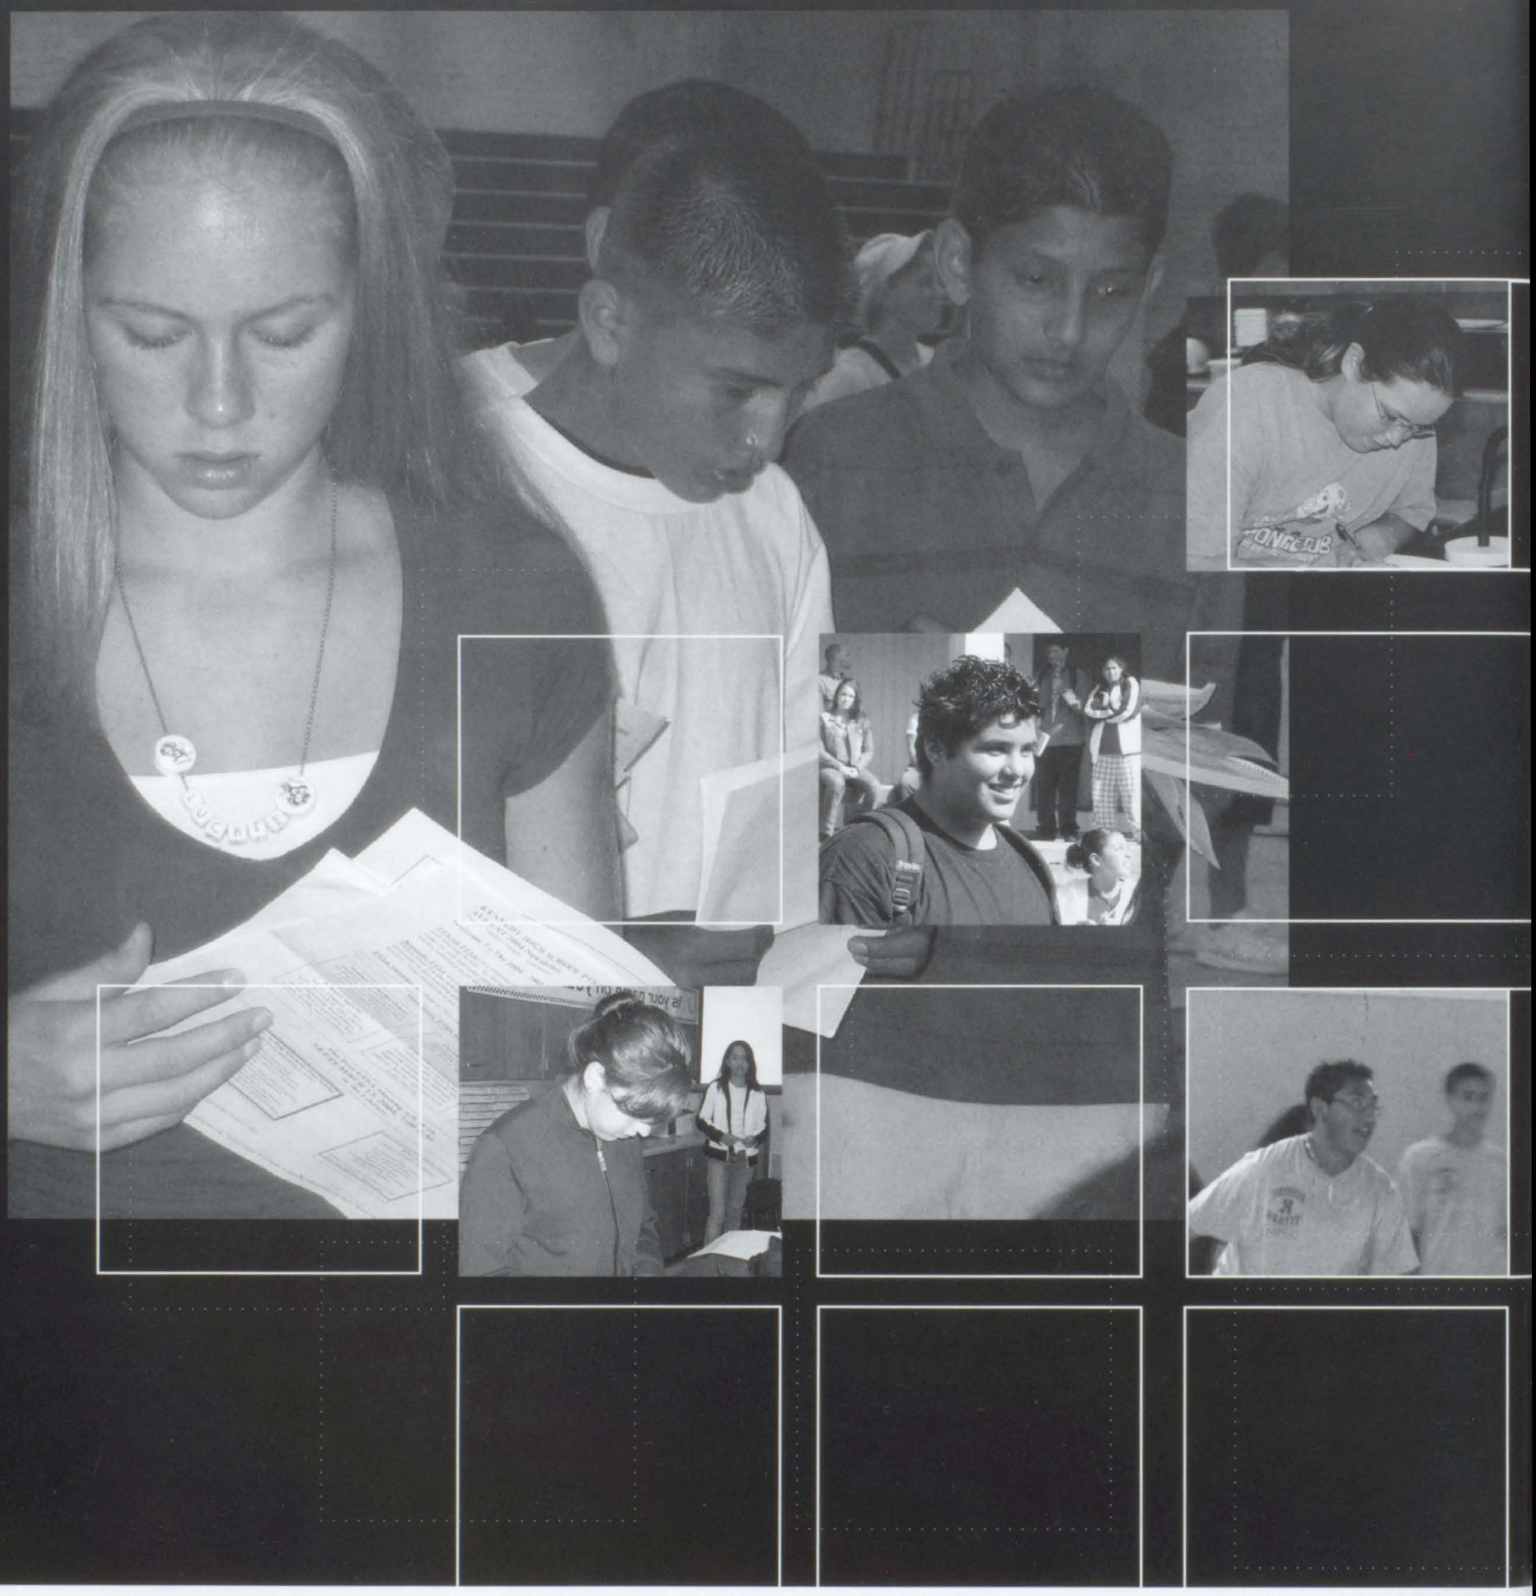
BE EVERYTHING YOU ARE!



"Fresh out of the pack"

The year of 2004-2005 was made up of many new faces from different junior highs who joined together and formed the class of 2008. Every freshman brought something new and unique with them. "I'm from Mexico City, Mexico, and I brought a different culture here," said Omar Vargas (08). While others brought in different cultures to the campus, others brought their artistic views. "I think I brought a diversity of music by listening to Gravy Train, Pedro the Lion, and Crass which I know not many people listen to," replied Jazmin Jones (08). Academics was a huge part of school too, and it was very challenging, but for a few it was fairly easy to maintain straight A's. "I brought good grades and influential ideas about how to better myself as a person and as a student. I tried to keep up at least a 3.8 GPA all year," said Genoveva Gomez (08). There were also tons of people who supported our Titans, for example Katie Gedeon (08), went to every football game. "By going to every game and cheering on our Titans, I helped support them to vitory. Go Titans!" So whether you were from a different country, a punk rocker, a straight A student, or a fan cheering from the stands, just remember:
YOU + JFK = Anything Is Possible.

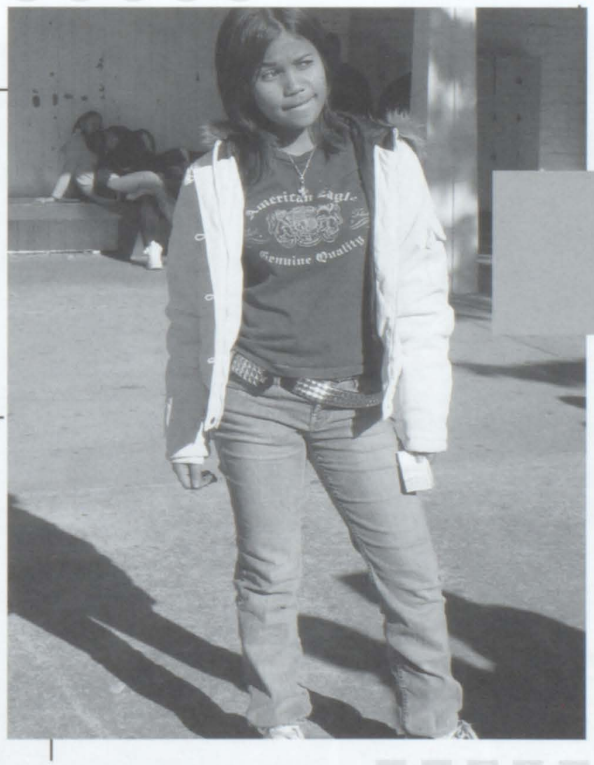
a special place in my heart. . .



Being a freshman and having to have to adapt to a new environment full of upperclassmen, Janna Pasta found it quite easy to meet new people. But with new people and a new school, she also found it quite simple to find that special someone to place in her heart. When asked who this special someone was, she simply replied, "Matt, but he graduated already, which means I don't get to see him anymore, but that's ok," she commented. Janna might have been young but she already knew that he would always have that special place in her heart. Who knows, maybe Janna and her special someone have found each other again. Her final thoughts about him was, "he was just so hot."

Beginning Moments

Justine Maciel-Savoy (08), explained what it was like starting her first year here. "At first, it was kind of scary because the campus here is much bigger than the campus in junior high," she stated. After a while, Justine started getting use to the fact that now she is going to school with much older people. Since Kennedy is an open campus, Justine started to like it,"It's fun here because there's a lot of things that you can do." Most likely, half the students have said that it was fun being a freshman because you get to experience what high school is like the first time and also meeting new people. Justine enjoyed being a freshman because she finally experienced her first year of high school and got to see how different high school is to junior high. For Justine, freshman year will be a year to remember.

What is your Anti-Drug?

1. Joseph Schmitz (08) stated, "I stay away from drugs because I am a proud guitar player. I know drugs are going to mess up my playing." 2. "My anti-drug are my parents. I have too much respect for them to just go off and do drugs," said Wade Brooke (08). 3. Erik Keene (08) said, "Skateboarding and I go hand and hand. Doing drugs is going to slow me down and eventually stop me from doing what I love." 4. "My physical ability and looks are very important to me. I know drugs are going to affect that. I don't want to be 21 and look like I am 42," commented Stephanie Montantes(08).

"Climbing the ladder"

Sophomore, what did that mean? Was it just another name for a younger classmen? No matter what it meant, there would have always been new, old, and developing relationships. "Sophomore year was a better year for me because I met new people, so in a way, I fit in." said Jonah Arines (07). It was always a good confidence booster to have known that you were around people who cared for you. "Sophomore year seems more relaxed because there wasn't as much 9th grade drama and you know a lot more people around you," exclaimed Kimberly Rogel (07). Kimberly ate lunch with her friend Andrea Cilley (07) every day. They shared a strong friendship that is sure to last a life time. You might have thought that all you needed to do to graduate high school was to pass your classes and get the credits you needed. Well, it turned out it wasn't that easy. There needed to be some way for others to reach you. Marisa Gonzales (07), explained, "I knew a lot more people so it felt like I was included." Marisa loved to sing with her friends in Choir. Together and in harmony they sang Kiss the Girl from The Little Mermaid. Life in high school built up potential so you could be your best. Relationships played a huge role in a sophomore's life. Some relationships may have fallen apart, but memories kept growing.

During Maze Day, Leticia Ruiz hands out flyers for the students to take home. She was explaning about the Parent Awareness and Dress Code Policies.

Delia Torres (07) showed her spirit on Sophomore spirit day by dressing as a pirate. She was on her way to join her other pirate friends in the middle of the quad.

In 4th block instructional focus Robert Jackson (07) and Chantelle Delos Santos (07) ponder over their music trying to figure out the notes. Robert and Chantelle had built a strong friendship over the years in school together.

Ashlee McGaughey (07) tests her bubble blowing skills in a duel with her best friend.

There were still a few minutes before the bell rang so it was time for a game. Dolly Sidu (07) (right) and Chelsea Hemry (07) played a game before 2nd block started.

He Takes the Stage

When it came to musical talent, Dario Slavazza had a lot. He played tenor and alto saxaphone for the school band, but there was far more that this musician had to offer. In addition to playing the saxaphone, Dario also played the flute, clarinet, drums, and piano. Not only did he use these skills for the band, but he also contributed to a band that played at John Soulis's every other Thursday night.

I proved you wrong, I can do it

While at home, Nicholas Chapman (07) was playing his video game, Need For Speed: Hot Pursuit 2. Nick's friend came over to him and said that Nick couldn't do a barrel roll with his car. Who says he can't do it? One of the biggest lessons in life is that you can do any thing you put your mind to. Even things as small as doing barrel rolls on your game can prepare you to say "I can do it" in the real world. As long as you think you can do something, then there is nothing or no one that can stop you from achieving it.

"Just a little bit longer"

Just one more year of high school, juniors were well on their way to graduating. Imagine how exciting it was to be one step closer to going to college and going out into the real world. To some, it was an overwhelming experience, while to others it was just plainly remarkable. With all that, what is next in line for these juniors? Close to graduating, juniors have a lot to think about for their future. "I am so scared knowing that after high school you go out into the real world and I personally think I am not prepared for it," said Vanessa Haro (06), when asked how she felt of having one more year left. When the question was passed on to Louis Tambini (06), his response was, "I am really looking forward to graduating so I can go directly into the working field and start supporting myself." The junior class had grown to know each other while they made their experiences here at high school more worthwhile. After they graduate in 2006, it will be difficult for the friendships and the relationships developed within the class.

On a piping hot day Holly Kildebeck (06) dipped her head in a bucket full of water and apples. "It was actually very refreshing since it was hot," she said. She was one of the many students that bobbed for apples at lunch, in the quad during DECA week. Christine Lynn (06) also bobbed for the apples that same day. "It was frustrating because I was trying to get others to participate in the bobbing but in the end I had lots of fun," she said.
At five o'clock in the morning Linh Dang (06) and other Juniors set up their murals in the gym for their spirit week day. Their murals consisted of various posters and magazine cut-outs of famous music artists. "I hated getting up early that morning because I barely got any sleep at all," said Dang.

Who's your idol

Everybody has an idol. It can be a person you admire or share the same qualities with. Monique Baptista's (06) idol happens to be Angelina Jolie. She finds her extraordinary and brave. "I love how athletic and strong she is and at the same time beautiful." She first realized Angelina Jolie was her idol when she played the role as Lara Croft in the great action movie, "Tomb Raider." Monique was amazed at how hard Angelina Jolie had to work to play that role. "She even had to train at the Lee Strasberg Theatre Institute to prepare for this role," replied Monique Baptista. Most people see Angelina Jolie as a beautiful, young talented lady, but for Monique, Angelina Jolie is her idol.

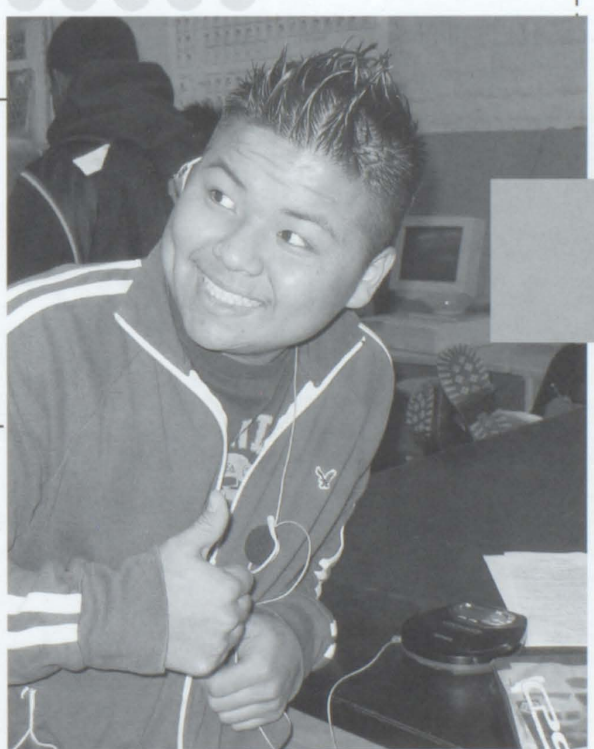
What's your most embarassing moment?



Everyone has had atleast one embarrassing moment that has happened to them. In Alex Hann's (06) case, it happened just last summer. Alex and his friends were hanging out and it was a nice day out so, they decided to go swimming. "Everyone was having a great time," he said. They played water polo, tag, and even volleyball. The day was going well until it was time to leave the pool. Everyone got out just fine, but Alex on the other, all he said was, "As I was getting out of the pool my shorts just wanted to stay in." His shorts had fallen off! But Alex had no choice, but to get over it so he moved on, it happens to everyone. Every one atleast has one embarrassing momment.

Remembering '05

What do students look back on when reminiscing about high school days? 1. Jean Fernandes (05) said, "All the fun times I had with my friends, stressing over silly grades, and all the embarassing stuff I did as a freshman are moments I will always remember." 2. Roger Sarvate (05) stated, "I will remember the food and how expensive it was." 3. Fireshta Wahab (05) said, "I will definitely miss my friends because we will be going to different schools." 4. Dexter D'sa (05) said, "All the hilarious moments I experienced throughout my four years of high school, and the 'brotherhood' we developed in all the sports teams we were able to be a part of."

Growing Up & Looking Back

2005 Memories

"High school makes or breaks you," a statement said by many high school graduates. Since our elementary days we have anticipated the day that we finally begin high school, and our new lives. It was said that high school was one of the most influential experiences of our young adult lives. When students entered high school, they knew that thier lives would forever be changed; new classes, friends, teachers, and new relationships.

We have been climbing the ladder of life to get to the point of no return, high school. The step between the relationships students knew and the relationships that will soon come. With this came the greatest fear and anticipation ever. We were growing up. No longer were we children, but young men and women that entered the real world. A world full of new jobs, relationships, and experiences that we have been forever preparing for. High school has been one of those experiences that we will remember for the rest of our lives.

When you think of high School, what do you think of? A lost love? A favorite class? Or do you think of how much you miss it? Though, there are some things that we'll all remember about high school, some of which were our friends. We spent atleast four years with those people. You could've said that the fact that you weren't going to see your friends every day at school anymore didn't matter to you but the truth is, it did, and it still might until this day. Friends were things that was just too hard to forget, some of us can remember faces, or names but the one thing that we will always remember are the memories. The memories of those late-night dinners that you have had with all your friends, and those crazy parties at that one friend's house. Crazy nights with friends are things that will always stay with us throughout our lives.

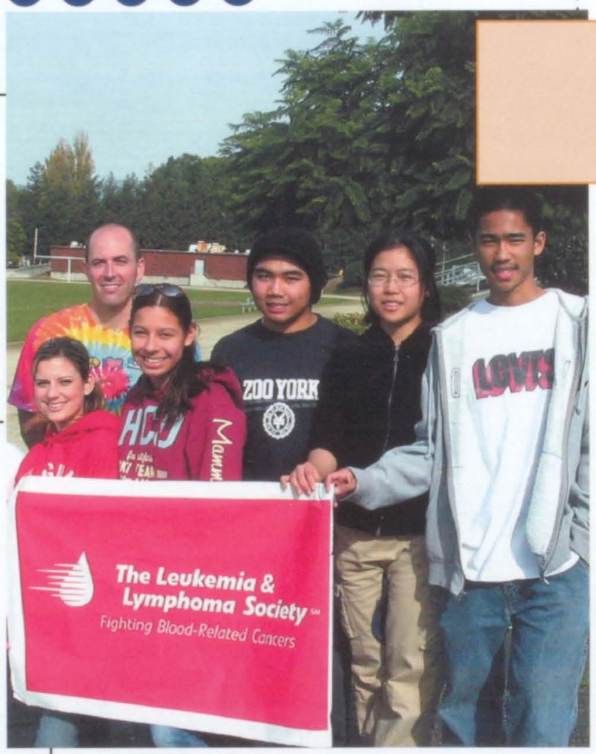
Walking for a Cause



On November 14, 2004 around thirty people showed up for the Walk for Leukemia at Tak Stadium. Five seniors, Noemi Guzman, Kristina Petritsch, Daryl Yann, Arbie Estabillo, and YinYin Li spent two months organizing the fundraiser. "We wanted to do something instead of just talking and writing about it," said Noemi Guzman. The proceeds of about $600 from the walk-a-thon went to The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. At first, it was difficult to get people to donate and sponsor the cause, in the end the fundraiser was still a success. The group wanted to thank all the teachers that helped and their Senior Project supervisors, Mr. and Mrs. Waller who made it all possible.

Titans tromp Football

"The crowd gave us the power we needed to win!!!"

Corbin Christensen (06)

While running at one of American's running back, Jonathan Wells (06) and Andre Mull (06) double-teamed the player causing a fumble. The game was something students will forever remember.

Running back, Kaulana Lee (05) dashes through the field to score the winning touchdown at Kennedy's homecoming game.

Defensive line, Martin Villagomez (05), furiously tackles American High's running back. As he tackled the falling American, he helped strengthen the Titan's defense.

Number 87 caught a game pass touchdown, he just won the game. The crowd went wild, they jumped out of their seats, and the cheerleaders cheered on as they got the crowd hyped. We had won the biggest rivalry game of the year, and varsity football was on its way to the MVAL. Many said that football was just some game students play during High School. Although to some, this sport was not just a sport, it was a part of their life. "Football is my life. It's what I enjoy doing, it has helped me stay on task in school to keep my grades up and hopefully this will help me in the future to get a scholarship," said Devonte Thomas (05). Football was not only a good experience for life, but it also brought the players together. "I see this football team as a family because we practice together, we hang outside of school together, and we have dinners with coach at least once a week," stated Kaulana Lee (05). "When I watch the varsity football game I only see the team and how they're playing. We don't see what goes on behind those locker doors. They've become a family and have put a lot of dedication into this past season," said Farokh Wahab (06). Varsity football had different meanings to different people. Crowds might have seen it just as a game, but the players and teammates saw it as a family.

While tackling a runner on the Eagles team, defensive back Devonte Thomas (05), made sure that the runner would not get far. The game finished and the Titans took the win.

Hopping over Mission's warrior, Armando Teixeira (06) breaks the defense's ankles at Kennedy's homecoming game.The Kennedy Titans put on quiet a show for its homecoming opener.

The game was started out with a huddle and a play called by the quarterback. The quarterback had a tough responsibility making sure he ran the play right and completed every pass. The receiver also had a role to play and it was to have good communication with the quarterback and score touchdowns. The defense was also an important part of the football team because without defense, they couldn't be a successful football team. The game came down to 10 seconds left, and if the offensive team scored a field goal, victory would have been theirs.

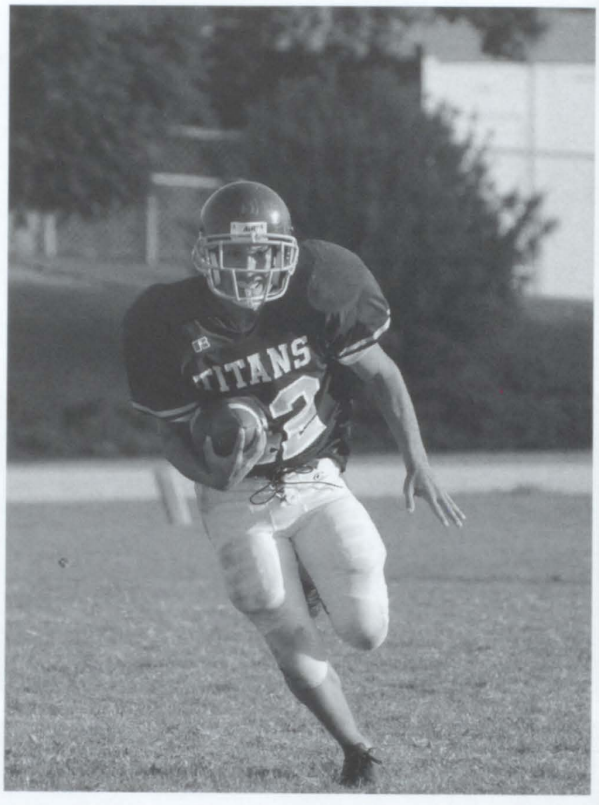
Jeff Loya (07) kicks a field goal in attempt to get a P.A.T. (point after touchdown)



After recieving a pass from the quaterback, runningback Nick Harlan (07) runs the ball towards the end zone.

Before the game against Logan, the freshman football players stretch out to prevent injury.

Minutes before the game they step onto the grass. They're not playing yet, but they can already feel the excitement. They hear coach yell "Go get 'em! IT'S GO TIME!" Many people think football is all fun and games. But football is so much more than that. It takes dedication, hard work , and a whole lot of time and injuries. Perry Shellshear (07) who sprained both of his ankles said, "It hurt but it didn't hurt as much as it did not being able to play in the rest of the game. "Not only do injuries run you down but so does going to practice. Practice was every day, then games on Fridays and Saturdays. "We practiced for two hours every day and in the summer we have double days where we have to practice for four hours with only one break!" exclaimed Adam Bustamante (08). Even though practice was rough it was great because they got to meet life long friends. "We are like brothers. We all get mad sometimes like all brothers do, but when its game time we know we have to work together as a team to get the job done," explained Mitchell Maldonado (07). Football is known as a rugged, violent sport, but it teaches many valuable lessons for life. "I learned to control my anger and use anger only when it's necessary," stated Trevor Bauchou (08). Through harsh preparation, agonizing injuries, hard work, and a lot of teamwork, they found themselves on the field ready for yet another game. GO TITANS!

The Titans set up their formation to start off the game. The center hikes the ball into the hands of the quarterback, Eric Bitting (07). The quarterback then throws the ball to the reciever who catches the ball and runs it down the field in hopes to get a touchdown. There is a half time break in between the game after the second quarter. During half time the boys go into the locker room and talk to their teammates and coaches. When half time is over the titans get right back into the game. Then the players finally catch their breath when the game is over.

Gotta Kick it up

The girls were careful not to drop Andrea Trisler (07) while stunting during a practice one thursday afternoon. "While stunting you really need to count on your stunt group and you need to trust them so they dont drop you." said Trisler.

Coach Tami Campbell and Shelley Stern admired the squad as they put the finishing touches on a very advanced stunt.

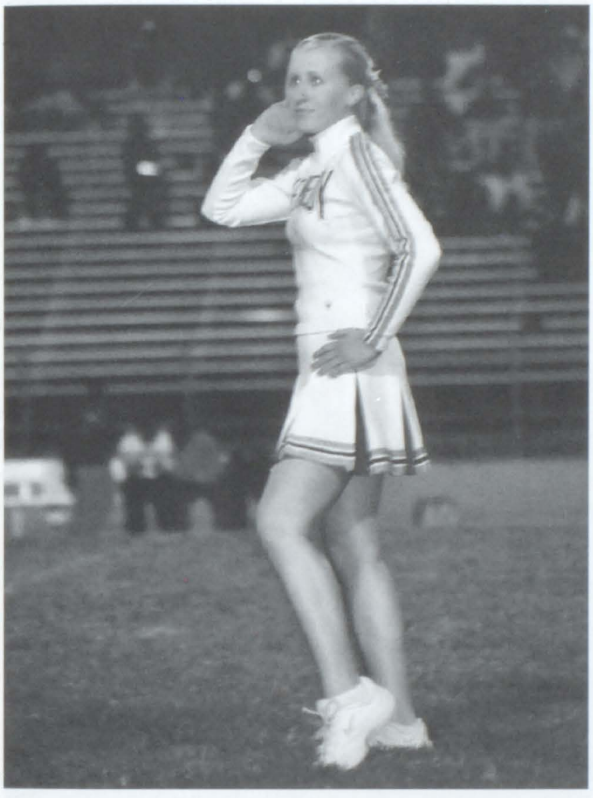
1. The squad stretches thirty minutes every practice to warm up before dances and cheers. 2. After stretching they run through all the dances and perfect them so they look good. This takes around fifty minutes. 3. All that dancing makes the girls tired, they regain energy by having a quick five minute break and get some water. 4. After getting their energy back they go over cheers and chants in about thirty minutes. 5. Before they all get to go home they have a five to ten minute meeting about upcoming events they need to be aware of.

"People see cheerleaders as preppy or ditzy, but we aren't your typical squad, we are our own person, we are individuals."

Margaret Thompson (06)

Cheerleading



One cold friday night, Sarah Lajoie (06), shows off her dance moves to "Move your body", during half time.

Giving it her all Briana Garcia (08) concentrated on her moves to give the audience the best performance she could. "I always try my best when I perform for the audience, because if you do a bad job it reflects not only on you but your whole squad." said Garcia.

While being creative and working productively, Jenel Glover (05) hurries to finish the break through poster that the football players run threw during the homecoming game.

With 170 hours and 100 long hot days spent, the titan cheer squad worked on ten dances, more advanced stunts, and longer cheers. "Cheerleading is fun, but it can also be very frustrating at times, that's when you really need to count on your squad the most," explained Elissa Gomez (07). By going to a private cheer gym over the summer, the squad made a spectacular season. With only nine girls on Junior Varsity and ten on Varsity, they showed everyone that they could still be the best with a smaller team. "I think it is easier being on a smaller squad only because you can decide on things easier and you can become closer friends with the people on your squad," said Heather Hill (08). Cheerleading had been an unforgettable season and led to many more extraordinary years. "This season has been one of the best years on the squad and I am glad I got to be apart of it all," said Sarah Lajoie (06).

Crosscountry

Running as one

While you were walking home after school, the cross country team was running eight to ten miles, from Kennedy to Mission and back. Their preparation was full of dedication, determination and endurance. "Determination is what gets my legs moving," said Jennifer Hackey (07). If you were looking for a way to lose weight, cross country took students to the extreme; by doing warm ups and long runs to get in shape. "Crosscountry helps me be in good condition and be a better runner," said Sandra Ponce (06). Running was a mind sport, the way you think took you to where you wanted to go. What was on Kyle Huskins (08) mind while he was running? "Beating my brother Ian who was here last year." There was more to cross-country than just running. Eventhough crosscountry can be a serious sport Doron Johnson said, "My shorts fell down" (06). This sport was an interactive sport where students were able to make a lot of new friends. "It's fun, you get to meet new people," said Carlos Ponce (08). They all agree that crosscountry was a fun hard working sport. All it took was determination and endurance.

At an after school meet Coach Mcgaughey says how proud he was of this team. "The team worked harder than any other team, in the last couple of years," said coach.

Controlling all his strength inside Chris Russett (07) waited for the right time to make a dash for the finish line.

"I wanted to try something new and interesting, crosscountry.

Arbie Estabillo (05)

Minds are constantly thinking. Ever wonder what's in a runner's mind? "I sing songs in my head from the band Metallica," replied Matt Stemm (06). Not only is music what plays in runners' minds, but also the thought of getting home for a good nights rest, "I want to finish so I can go home and sleep," said Joel Wong (06). For Jiang Shang (06) he thinks about how difficult it is to run, "running is not as easy as it looks." Junior Brian Lee (06) had this to say, "When I'm running I hum the last song I heard." For Erik Buenrostro (07) he thinks, "Is somebody catching up with me?" No matter what goes through their minds, they always managed to stay focus.

With all his strength Kyle Huskins (08) is ready to beat the opposing team, by running as fast as he can. He wouldnt let anyone get in his way.

Jerry Lin (08) looks ahead at the finish line as he runs. He had confidence that he is going to make it.

Our Titans are tough competitors, no matter how difficult the race can be. They always managed to run through the finish line.

The game is started off with a huddle and the coach telling his players what offense and defense they're going to be setting up in. It is good defense that leads to easy offense so Titans coach Domelle makes sure his players want to play defense and will simply sit them out. Finishing lay ups and shooting a good free throw wins a game 99.9 % of the time. The game then comes to an end. The teams have played excellent defense, and played their hardest. Regardless of the score, they were all winners.

Martel Scoggins (06) pulls up over three defenders. The Huskies defense came up short on that possesion.

The Titans come up with another steal and the fastbreak is lead by point guard Aaron Bosel (05). The senior guard was a big factor of the Titans offense.

The Kennedy Titans basketball team goal is to take league, no matter if they were predicted to have taken second. Varsity's basketball coach Domelle said, "Predictions aren't always true, and we can succeed taking league by playing hard every possession of the game, play smart, and as a team." The team had a lot of talent and some strong senior leaders. "I can tell this season is headed for a great start because we just had three of our most outstanding practices this year," remarked Aaron Bosel (05). A lot of the players have stepped up and were willing to go in the game at any given moment. "When I get in the game I just play my role on the team by stopping the best opponents player," said Tri Phan (05). Like every team, some players had arguments, but when it came to game time and the ball was tipped off, the players were like a family no matter what happened. They had each other's back. "This year our team chemistry is much more focused because we want to show everybody in the MVAL that we have one objective this season, and that is to take league," said Jason Watts (06). The goals were set high and everybody was looking forward to achieving them.

Adrian Packer (08) replied, "We can win more games, we have to play good as a team, play good defense and just have a good attitude." Not only did the freshman team preform well during the beginning of the season, but the J.V. team tried extremely hard and played awsome too. "We want to put a banner on the wall for the school," said Kyle Preddy (07). The Junior Varsity basketball team's main goal was to win the championship this year. They came up short the first game but picked up from there. L.J. Ricardo (07) stated, "I believe we are taking the M.V.A.L.'s, this year is JFK's. We got this as a team." The team's attitude is very positive, Gabriel Lambey (06) replied, "We practice hard, we play hard and we play with confidence. We have no respect for our opponent until after the game." Both teams hoped to have a successful season.

Girl's Basketball

When you think of basketball, what image comes to mind? A basketball, a gym, tall basketball players? In the beginning, the sport was not just a game. Basketball started out because of a rowdy class in New England. The game was supposed to be an "athletic distraction" for the students. Basketball was at first, a game only for the guys. Nowadays, basketball is so popular that both men and women play this for a living. "I'm looking forward to going to the WMBA, but first I have to improve on a lot of things," said Laquiva Evans (05). Although both men and women play, the women felt that they didn't get enough attention. "I think that guys get more attention because they're more aggressive and can dunk," stated Shastina Lopez (07). Basketball consumed a lot of time, which sometimes interfered with school. Ashley Abadia (07) said, "Its hard but I do it, its a challenge and I like challenges, also I can't give up something I love playing." In basketball, to become captain was also a big challenge. You would have to be at a certain level. "Being captain feels great because your a role model for the rest of the players on the team, and it feels great when they tell you what a great job you're doing," said Christina Vargas (05). So there you go, in basketball they had a lot of responsibilities, but if it's something you love doing, it didn't matter how hard it got.

"The adrenaline of this game cannot be explained.

The game begins when the referee throws the ball into the air. The two teams fight for possesion and then they have to send it to their side of the court. The team that wins possesion has to set up an offense that is effective and can successfully get the ball down the court by passing to the other teammates and dribbling. If they lose possesion they quickly have to set up a defense to regain the possesion of the ball. In the middle of the game they stop to talk and plan. Then after half-time the game goes quickly and the pressure is on to win.

Eleven girls. Eleven different dreams. All one goal. "Our major goal was to improve our stats and skills and to show everyone that we do have heart," said Lauren Acker (07). The team started off the season really nervous with only three returning seniors and a new head coach. "Being one of the few seniors, I wanted to show a good example for the underclassmen on my team in hope that they would carry on my love for the game and never lose focus on their goal in the seasons to come," replied Katherine Ward (05). The girls weren't the only ones this season with the goals, the new head coach, David Acker, also had a few goals of his own in mind. "I wanted to improve the team as much as I could in skill and spirit, to show the other schools that Kennedy does take soccer seriously." Even though they had a rough and rocky start, the girls kept their spirits up and used the goal that they all shared to keep the companionship of the team strong throughout the whole year.

Making sure the opponent doesn't get the ball, Cristobal Montez (07) clears it from danger.

The game begins when the foward kicks the ball to another player. The players have to try to keep the ball on the opposite side of the field and advance it towards the goal. It's not as easy as it sounds though. The players have to make connections with their other teammates and have to keep possesion and avoid the other team. Then, if the ball does get taken away, they have to think quickly to regain possesion. When the ball is near the goal, the goalie needs to be avoided in order to get it in the net. When a point is scored, it starts again.

Talent, dedication, and strong will. That's what it took to play soccer, and these boys had it. They showed it when they beat the M.V.A.L. champions, Washington, in their first game, thanks to the two new goalkeepers Alex Palomarez (06) and Ernesto Quiroz (07). Throughout the season, these Titans proved that they had what it took to make it, even if they didn't win every game. Many of the players were new to the sport but that didn't stop them from dominating the soccer field . "We're a young team but we're still as competitive as the other teams," said Jorge Gomez (06). They started young, but they grew all through the season and it showed. There was nothing but improvement in these players. Humberto Munoz (05) agreed saying, "Each year we are getting better and hopefully we will qualify for the playoffs soon." That goal is the one that they are following year after year, the reason they were giving it their all, out on the soccer field.

Ashley Nahale (08) spikes the ball to get it over the net for her team to win a game against Washington.

As the team warmed up to get ready for their game, a crowd of people walked in and got prepared to cheer for the girls volleyball team. "It's nice to have support and you want to try harder because there's alot of people out there supporting the team," said Heather Newman (06). To have a crowd there and cheer you on is to play harder and win more games. "The crowd gets me pumped up during a game," said Ciara Pasta (06). The volleyball team worked hard to improve their skills and learn to work together as a team. In the past years, the other high schools would think that they could beat us just because we have had a bad reputation. "They probably think that Kennedy is a big joke because we haven't been all that great but this year it's different," said Laura Zimbrick (06). The volleyball team had put a lot of effort on playing hard and doing what's best for the team. Focusing was the important thing in volleyball because the girls had to focus on where the ball was going and how they wanted to hit the ball in order to score a point. "Focus and play hard," is what Nahakulei Lee (07) told her teammates before a game. Even though the season was over, the girls tried thier best to have a successful year.

At Kennedy's gym, Perry Shellshear (07) here shows his wrestling skills off. He crushed Newark down.

A wrestling match starts out with the wrestlers stretching in the middle of the mat. The match then proceeds to the team captains shaking hands from the two different schools. After, the tournament begins. Throughout the game, wrestlers wrestle different opponents. Some may win, some may lose. After a match, a wrestler may get a talk with their coach, advising them what they should do next time. The points accumulate all together and the winning team is decided. After all the matches, the two teams shake hands again.

"I like wrestling because it's a challenging sport."

Stretching it out. Warming up before the game against the blue Cougars, the wrestlers stretch, hoping for a win that evening. After, the players got ready for their awaited matches.

As the match against Newark went on, the rest of the wrestling team on the sides watched with surprise. Kennedy needed to step up.

Did you know that before, around 708 B.C., wrestling was a very violent sport? It was a sport so violent and punishing that practices almost mirrored military trainings, just without the weapons. Now into the 21st century, look how far this sport has come. It is now a game filled with regulations and systems, a game full of excitement, not only for the audience to watch, but also for the wrestlers as well. "It's a thrill to be playing again, especially since I'm a senior," commented Daryl Yann (05). "I'm looking forward to NCS for the third time this year, and hopefully make it to state." Erik Zinn (06) also stated, "Wrestling is just fun. We get fit and we learn self-control; I love the fact that I also get to kick butt." In addition, the wrestlers have developed into a family. Not only did the wrestlers and their coach see each other during practices, but they also saw each other when it came to competitions and just plain kicking back. Brian Lee (06) stated, "Some of the people I hang out with I met through this sport. We'd see each other during practices and then even outside of school." Julian Flores (07) also said, "I think we are a family, even though it's early in the year. We all know each other." So, despite all the hard practices and tough work-outs these wrestlers have endured, they have gained success; they're all family. Who knows, we might even see one of these Titans on t.v. in the next century.

Neither rain, nor snow couldn't hold back the girl's tennis team as they practiced long and hard for their up coming competitions. They've endured pain, sweat, and even physical pressure, just to become the best. Having to practice everyday under the pressure of wanting to win every game, the team deserves a job well done. Hitting the small yellow ball with the racket fast and tough isn't just what the sport is about. Total concentration also comes along with the game itself. "I think about trying to throw the ball in the right spot with total focus. So that when I hit it, the ball goes in," said Maria Nazari (07). Furthermore, with total concentration, also came the different strategies of the team players that contribute greatly to the game. When asked what her strategy was when playing in a competition, Kristabelle Alatas (05) replied, "Hitting the ball in tennis needs a lot of arm muscle and strenghth. You have to hit the ball pretty hard to get it over the net and away from the opposite team." Tennis wasn't just about concentrating or using different strategies, it was all about having fun and working together as a team. The girls tried their very best competing in every game. They all tried to reach their goals by practicing everyday after school to try to get all the good strategies they need in order to be a great player.

With practice games, it helped them gain confidence to rally other schools. The players challenged themselves and their teammates to practice their special moves. Each player was filled with determination to be on top of their games. Golam Sabbir (05) quoted, "Determination was my key to win my games. It kept me in focus and to accomplish my goals even more." Even though the team together consisted of 12 athletes, they all became one and contributed to all that was possible. They never gave up hope and fought to the very end. Michael Campos (05) stated, "Even though I lost a few games, I overcame the lost and worked even harder. I had a lot of fun with the team." The coach was also a great contribution to the team. She supported the team all the way by helping them focus, stay in shape, and play harder. Also, tennis was a great sport for the athletes. Even though the team did not win every single game, the team ended up in a triump. They had the chance to meet one another and experience the chaos.

In the game of golf, people don't realize how much work the players have to put into it to get the perfect swing. Golf was another game full of concentration. "It takes years of practicing your swings and concentration. When you first start playing golf, you will never be perfect at it. Nobody is perfect on their first try," said William Little (06). As for Tyler Hogan (06), he was a pro at the game. "For me, it doesn't take long because I am a professional at everything I do," he exclaimed. With concentration, practices also came with the sport. The golf team held their practices on Tuesdays and Thursdays. They practiced very hard, diligently, and took time to do whatever it had to take them to become a good player. "At most times, I'll be practicing and concentrating more. I like to practice on my swings, because I think that's more important in golf too," commented Ian MacDonald (06). Practicing on their swings wasn't the only thing that the team practiced. Other players liked to do things to get pumped up for their matches. When asked what they, as the players liked to do to get pumped, Diane Kwon (08) stated, "What I like to do before a match starts is that I usually like to do some strecthes and hit range balls." Track is as much of a mental sport as a physical sport. It is easy to get hurt so the runners have to be sure to stretch well before they run. Then, they have to do warm ups so that they are ready to compete. For long distance runners, there is a lot of concentration and endurance involved. The runners must make sure they don't waste thier energy all at once. The sprinters have to concentrate on thier form because that is what gives them most of thier speed. Their athletic skills and their mental skills helps them excel in thier competitions.

Crossing the line

Track and field was the first sport done in the Olympics in 776 B.C., but then, it was mostly short distance foot races. Since then, the sport has advanced quite a bit. The main events became various distance running, jumping, and throwing. It used to be considered an amatuer sport but the Kennedy track team proved that wrong, showing that it took a lot of practice and hard work to succeed. They went to practice everyday and worked hard on improving thier skills. "We have to run a lot during practice but it's definately worth it. When we race, it shows how hard we've been working and we can be proud of it," said Miguel Posadas (06). Like any coach, Coach McGaughey told his team that it didn't matter if they win or lose, just as long as they tried their hardest. They took this seriously and at every meet they showed again and again that they believed that. "When you get out there, you just know you have to push yourself as hard as possible," stated Quetzalma Quiroz (06). Though track and field wasn't necessarily a team sport, they worked together every day on improving and helping each other become the best they could be. Whether it was on the track or on the field, the Kennedy team had an outstanding season showing off their skills.

take it for the team

Did you know that on Thanksgiving Day 1887, softball was originated in Chicago? Yes it's true it all started out when a group of about twenty men gathered in the gymnasium of Farragut Boat club, trying to hear the outcome of the Harvard-Yale football game. It turned out that after Yale's victory was announced a man picked up a boxing glove, threw it at someone, and said, "Let's play ball!" Racheal Herdth (06) commented, "A legend is what the game of softball has been, and our victory is what we'll make it." The game of softball is now 118 years old, and now as our Lady Titans play, they made the softball legend even stronger. "I really enjoy playing softball, to me it's not only a game, but an accomplishment that I know that we as a team can achieve," said Alyssa Miller (07). As we had both J.V., and Varsity our lady Titans were able to help each other with the different techniques that they all had. "As one of the team players I really enjoy helping some girls, but at the same time the good thing is that in a way they help me too," stated Amanda Bitting (07). "Bunting is a really good technique that helps the whole team the girls that are able to bunt not only help themselves, but they help us all," also commented Lori Christoph (05). Our Lady Titans kept up the good work and helped each other to made a difference from the past years.

Ebony Bashir (05)

Our lady titans started off by warming up and stretching. Don't forget the teamwork! Communicating with each other was also one of the best and most important skills. The girls made sure that they warmed up so that they were ready to play, and use all their energy to hit one ball and make those hits count. Most of our lady titans made sure that the games became a victory. A victory to our lady titans was not just winning the game but defeating their opponent.

"Warming up is the most important thing to do before starting to play," said Jessica Andrews (06), shown here ready to throw a ball.

Serving the volleyball, Jonathan Mati (05), serves to try and defeat the other team. "I wanted to play a good game either if we won or if we lost," Mati said.

Getting ready for the ball to come over the net, these Titan's prepare themselves for the hit. The boy's volleyball team were united in winning the game that evening.

Volleyball was a game full of concentration and hardwork. A sport basically of teamwork; if one failed, everyone failed. "We worked very hard to make our hits get better. We had to do good in games," said Jerry Lin (08). Volleyball was a sport that people also enjoyed watching. Cheering helped the team get pumped up before and during a game. Before a game started, every player had something to do to get prepared. "I practice for about ten minutes with another team mate or sometimes I just usually listen to some music to get me pumped up," commented Roger Lumibao (07). Knowing that this was the first year of having a boys volleyball team, it was hard to see whether they were going to do well or not. "I think throughout this year, we've been bonding very well and playing very good," quoted Chad Nahale (08). Practicing everyday helped the team a lot also. "I think our team has done a very good job since it is our first year playing," said John Heflin (08). Moving on, the team's goal was set to do nothing but their best. "Our goal is to feel like we're here; it's our first year of having a boys volleyball team," stated Son Hoang (06). " We want to make an impact." Therefore, volleyball wasn't just a game of concentration and teamwork. It was a game of success, of teamwork, and of new memories.

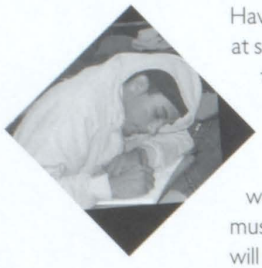
Diverse Languages

un mundo con different labs



Have you ever thought of not being able to communicate with people at school or anywhere else? Have you ever imagined a world without the art of language or if English never existed? This world would be silent and oh-so-boring! But luckily, we do communicate with each other, and we do have the art of speaking, something we're all grateful for. For example, English is the universal language of the world. The language is taught as a class and is a must that all students must take. "Taking English all four years has been hard, but in the end it will all be worth it," said Erage Nawabi (05). Furthermore, students also take a Foreign Language class. The classes offered help the majority of the students to learn a new dialect or in just learning their own. "I'm half Mexican and I want to be able to communicate with my family and understand what they're saying, so I'm taking Spanish here to help me with that," said Rachael Ross (07). In the end, whether or not students like English or Foreign Languages, it not only helped them in the long run but in the future, in the community, and in reaching their dreams.

During class time Martin Saldovar (07) concentrated on proof reading a classmate's essay, and is frustrated by seeing the same mistakes over and over. "The most common mistakes people make are grammar and punctuation," said Saldovar.

Foreign language or English?

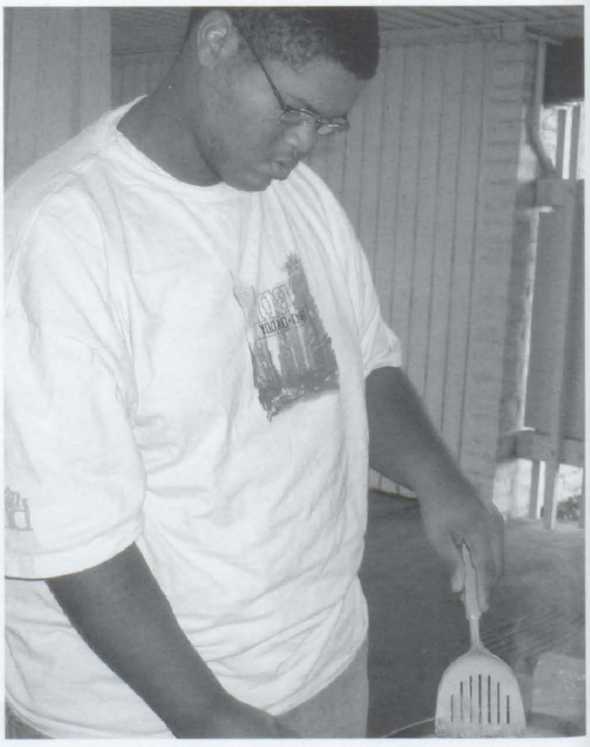
Which do you prefer...

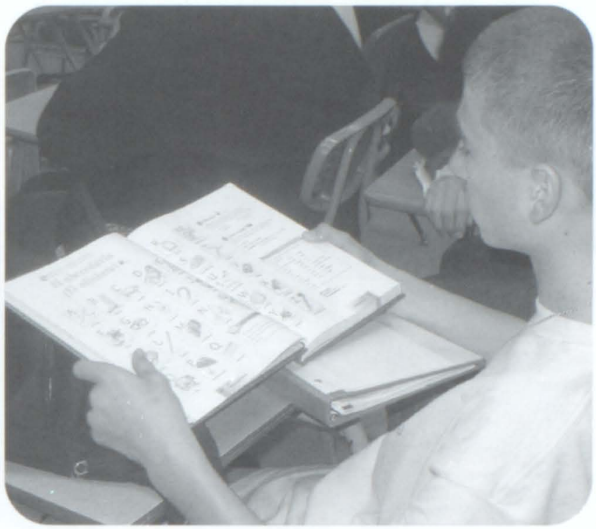
Tina Lam (06) already in French 3, prepared herself for the test. "I think Foreign Language is easier and I prefer it more."

As Jasmine Nojan (07) was sitting reading over her essay says, "I think English is easier because we use it all the time."

On a Friday morning, Satarah Tokhi (05), started off the day doing research for her English class, and is stunned to see how easy it ended up being after all. "I think English is easy because it's your verbal skills being tested."

After cooking omlettes, Jonathan Bell (06) for the first time is trying not to burn them. "I'm glad I took French because we get a chance to cook," said Bell.



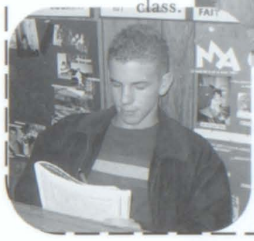


Concentrating on his Spanish vocabulary words, Chris Wiebusch (07) exclaims, "I enjoyed learning another language."

Amrita Prasad (05) and her classmates; Elaine Tu (05), Tamana Adin (07), Jimena Piez (05), and Travis Hawthorn (05) were getting ready to cook for their French class. After cuttting the fruits, Prasad says, "This class is very fun because we get to cook and learn at the same time."

If you had a choice...what other languages?

"I would want to learn German," said Sarah Jenkins (07), who took French as her foreign language class.



Robbie Porter (07) wishesd there was a variety of choice for foreign language. "I would want to learn Tagalog," said Porter.

> "I don't think you should have to take a Foreign Language if English is your second language."

— Gaugandeep Singh, when asked his opinion on Foreign Language.

Future Foriegn Language

Right before the class ended, Josh Scorca (07) had 20 minutes of class left, concentrating on reviewing the basic grammar rules in French. "Taking a Foreign Language will help me get into a better college," says Scorca.

Lauren Aseo (08) explained how taking a foreign language class will later benefit her. "It will help me communicate with others that need help or do not know English," said Aseo.

Gerson Sandoval (05), focused solitarily on looking up the definitions of Spanish words for his class. "It will help me get a better job and to communicate with others would be easier in the future."

Jasmine Grady taking a Spanish 1 class talked about how that class is important to her. "It will help me communicate with people in the community," said Grady.

In a rush to finish his paperwork, Chad Leege (07) goes over his answers. "I enjoy chemistry because it allows me to mix certain chemicals to form new ones."

Working in Mr. Martin's class Jeff Loya (07), Victor Melgar (07), and Raymond Mckinney (07) debate on which color to use for their poster. "I think that math helps me because it allows me to do things that I never thought I was capable of doing," said Loya.

A world without math.

With a pencil in hand, Corazon Ayap (05) writes down an equation. "A world without math would be boring because there would be nothing to solve."

While perfecting her math skills, Hadia Salak (06) confessed, "I would hate a world without math because there would be no means of currency."

"I'm fascinated by math because it has logic and proof."

— Pankaj Upadhyay (05), when asked why he enjoyed math.

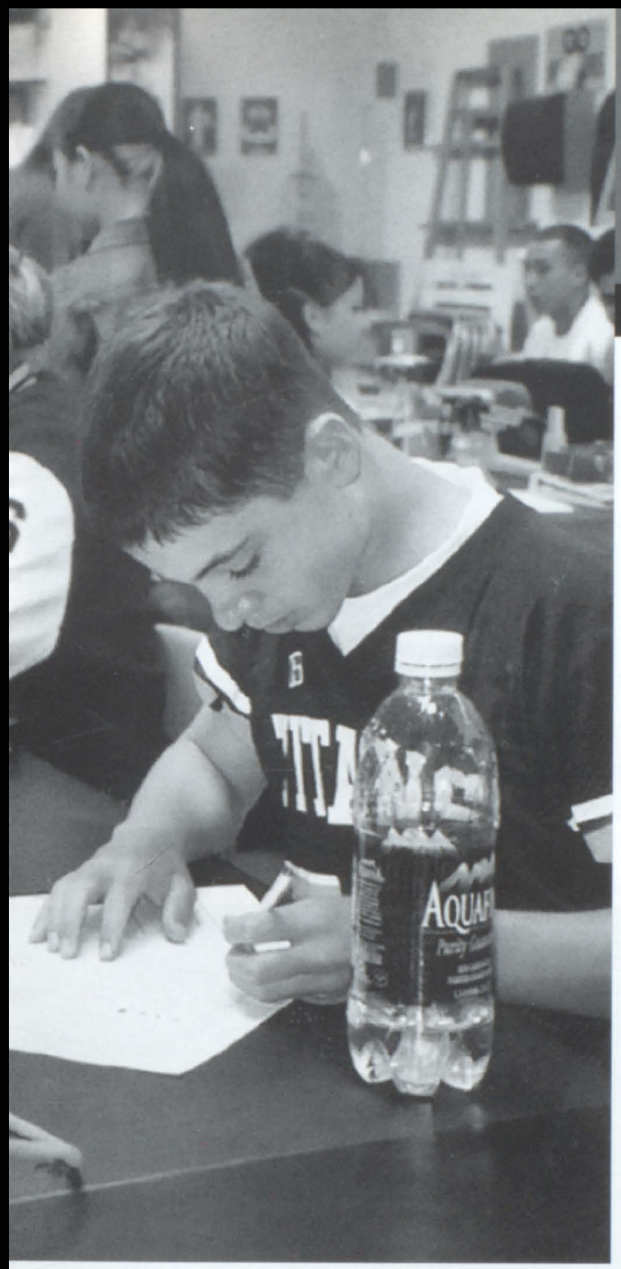
Hardest Areas in Math

Solving a math assignment, Adam Pitre (05) tried his best to finish his work. "The hardest thing about math is long division," he says as he struggles to keep up with his work.

Trying to pass time, Najeem Mirzada (08) invokes in a deep conversation with his nearby bud. "Fractions always frustrate me because there are so many rules that apply to them."

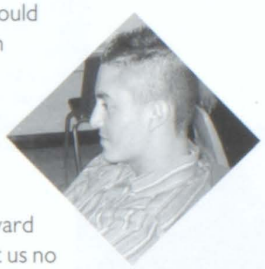
One Friday morning, Julie Choi (08) relaxes after helping a friend. "I hate memorizing formulas because there are so many and I always get them mixed up!" she exclaimed.

Ben Reisler (07) works out a hard math problem as the rest of his class moved along. "Proofs are so hard because you get confused with all the laws and identities," said Reisler.



Calculating Science

a world without numbers



Have you ever imagined a world with no numbers, no data, or no such theory of evolution itself? All these things make up most of what our world is today. These creations are so important that most of our lives are centered on it. Teenagers today are very grateful for the privileges they have, but it is human nature to sometimes take things for granted. The world high school students live in is a world revolved around science. If they don't have their phones, T.V., or e-mails then they would consider life dull and boring. "I would hate to think of a world without technology because all of the comforts of life wouldn't be the same. The world wouldn't be as we know it and adjusting to it would be harder than anyone could imagine," said Jasmine Pinegar- Kelly (07). Math also plays a part in technology. It's been hammered into your head since you've been old enough to know that 2+2=4. The room you're sitting in, the floor you're stepping on, and the walls that surround you have all been built by using algebra and geometry. A world without math and science would be a world no one would recognize. It makes up creations that lead us forward into the future. The knowledge we pick up always tend to haunt us no matter what we do in life. "I took math and science all four years because I need basic skills to make it in life," said Younus Sanger (05).

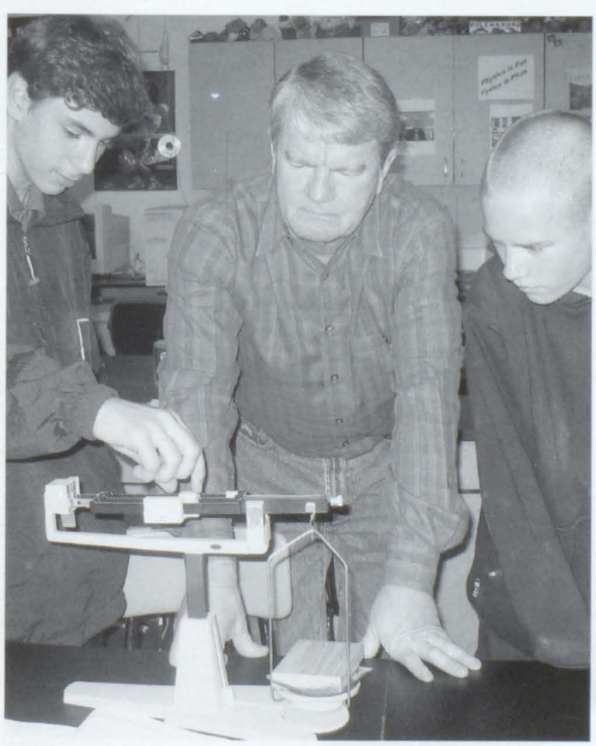
Esther Lee (06) types up her class work as she gains more knowledge about technology. "A world without science would be scary."

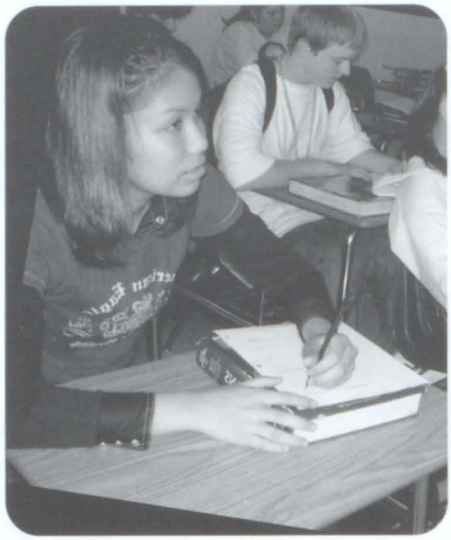
Pondering about life, Ayze Quraishi (05) stares at the scenery. "Life without science would be simple, everything would go at a slower pace."

Melissa Lira (07) takes a breath as she enjoys the spectacular experience of scuba diving. "The experience was better than I thought it would be. It was cool because being in the water helped me visualize all the things Mrs. Welch taught us in class," said Lira. The project took place in the school pool which lasted for 2 days.



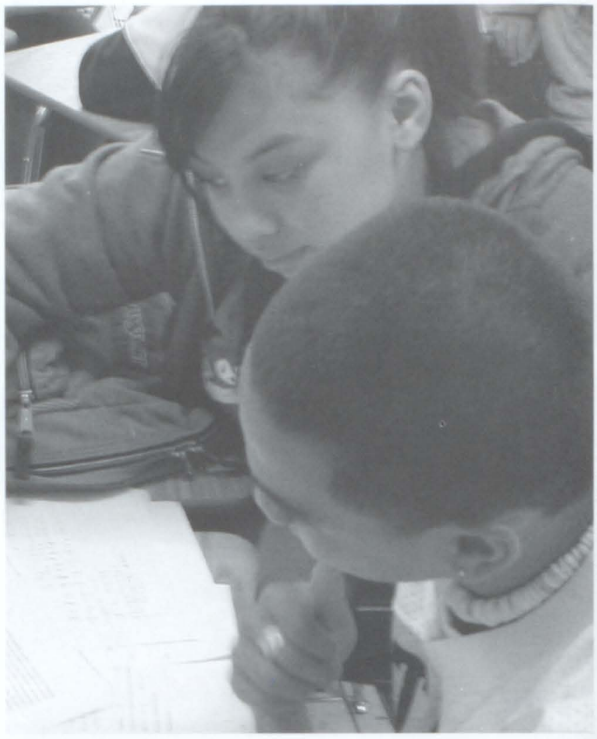
Curious about the charactersitics of the rocks, Genoveva Gomez (08) can't help but observe with awe. "I like studying Geology because it is very interesting to learn about the way rocks formed."

Ruben Muresan (08) gingerly handles the balance beam as he tries his best not to add any access weight on to the block. "Science is important to me because it teached us about the world around us."



Writing down lecture notes, Ciara Pasta (06) paid close attention to make sure she wrote all the important facts down.

In U.S. history class, Katrina Belda (06) and Michael Parks (06) worked together to finish their presentation on the Panama Canal.

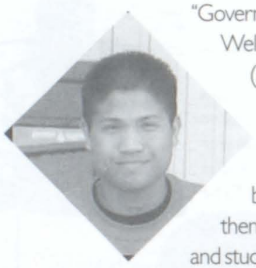


Raminderd Sidhu (05) liked to work with partners because she liked to get people to interact and communicate with each other. She thought working in groups was more effecient because everyone usually got everything done. Everyone was able to help each other out with their misunderstandings.

"Without teachers in the world I would probably party everyday and, I would learn from my mistakes," said Martin Villagomez(05).

"Our world would be undeveloped and we'd be stuck in the past," said Gerald Green (06).

A world without teachers?



"Government and Economics can get pretty boring but when a teacher like Mr. Wells takes over you know that it's going to be fun," says Melissa Marcadia (05). "All I do in class now is read and summarize, and I get so tired of it, it makes me want to cut class like everyday, but when I had Mrs. Santillan for my history last year I knew that I was going to like the class," says Michael Campos (05). We all knew that classes could get boring at times, but when your teacher was as fun as Mrs. Kinkler's class, then you enjoyed the hour and a half in the class. Kennedy was full of teachers and students that had their own way to teach things. When you had a teacher like Mrs. Kinkler, you could be sure that she knew what was hot and what's not. Classes got tough so we had to deal with it in many ways. "I try to get all my work done when I have free time at school," commented Belen Puebla (05), a student packed with classes like Government, Economics, and English. Schedules had a big effect on students and how they progressed throughout school. Many classes required full cooperation and tended to get boring. Making subjects like math and history fun were hard for some teachers. For Carlo Castuciano (05), teachers like Mrs. Kinkler and Mr. Peralta, he was sure that they know what it was a teacher does. "They do their job the right way and make their students want to learn." We all know teaching was a hard job but here and we were glad many teachers knew exactly what to do.

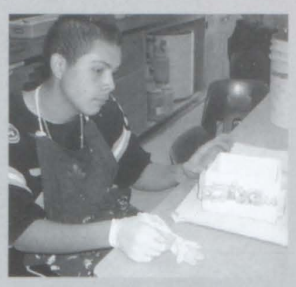
Spinning clay in hands and sitting on a spindal, Myrriah Rivera (05) painstakingly constructed her ceramic work. "I might change my career because I really enjoy this class, but cleaning up is the only thing I don't like," Rivera said.

In room 148, Rudy Barios (06) thought hard if his work was good enough. "I don't like the fact that we get dirty," said Barios. "I enjoy painting the ceramics though, it's the only thing that gets me."



Jenny Tu (08) stroked with simplicity as she worked on her art assignment in art class. "This class is fun. You learn new techniques and way of drawing, nothing's hard about the class," Tu commented.

Trimming her pictures, Leah Argon's (07) concentration was set in finishing her task. "Taking pictures and developing is easy in this class, but taking that 'perfect' picture is the hardest," she stated.

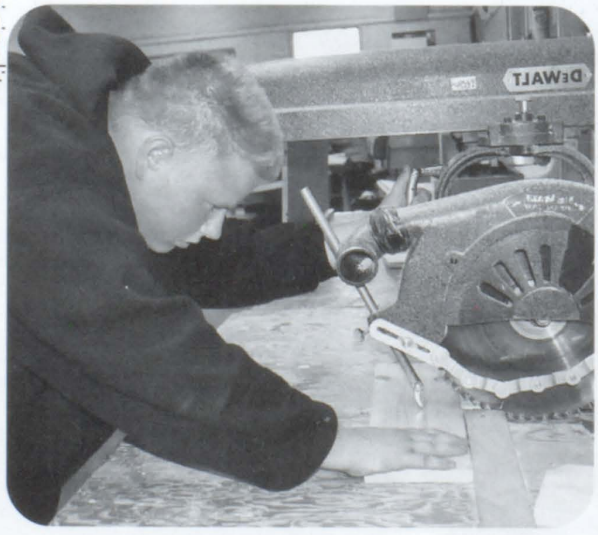
"Video is fun, even the tests. Plus, Mr. Martinez always jokes about everything in general."

— Vanessa Arredondo (07), when asked what she considered to be most enjoyable in Beginning Video.

A world of creativity and originality

Making sure his drawings were equal, Christopher Barrios (08) measured his art work.

Elizabeth Reyes (07) demonstrates her artistic talent with ease. Ceramics was a class that student's can be imaginative.



Being meticulously careful, Junior Alejandro Garibay worked on his woods assignment. Making sure that his pieces were carefully proportioned and smooth, Garibay was sure to finish.

Checking the wood he was about to cut just before it was put under the machine, David Weatherton (05) tries to make sure that the piece of wood cut in perfect pieces. Wood's was a class full of freedom.

In third period, Jenna Duncan (07), Cody Hernandez (07), Stan Chan (07), Keith Kuehn (07), and Jacob Baptista (05), paid their full attention to the video they're watching. Beginning Video was a class they all considered enjoyable.

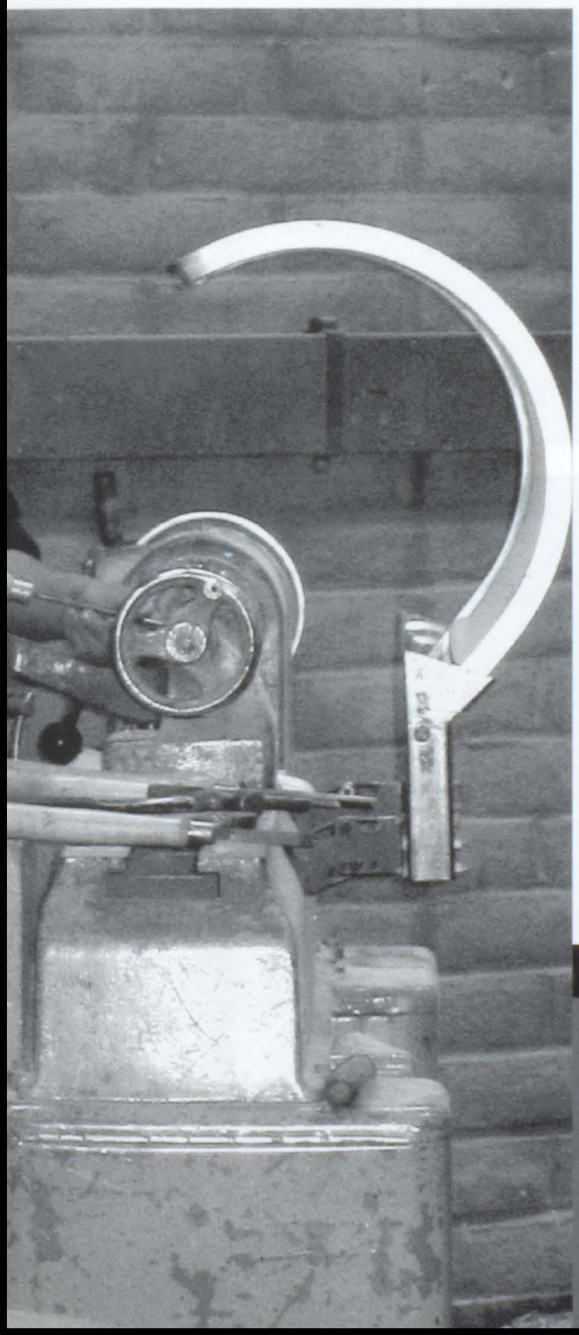
Devoting his time in the dark room in photography class, Riles Nganga (06) diligently printed his negative pictures for his class assignment. The dark room was where all the pictures were processed.

In Computer Technology, students were given a project to create a powerpoint presentation. It was a project in which the students had to go in depth of the major programs, such as MS Excel and MS Word, to name a few. When asked what he thought of the project, Phillip Tieu (06) replied, "I liked the project. It was fun, we got to present what we knew and how the programs can be used."

A world of pictures and colors

Junior Linh Dang took his time in art as he tried to complete his class assignment. Art helped student's like himself be creative.

During photo, Andrea Haas (08) examined her many negatives. She wanted to find that "perfect" picture.



As the bell rang to signal the end of a period, students quickly rushed to get to their next exciting class. A class that has let them be imaginative and carefree, a class that has let them speak their mind through the varying forms of art. Many say that the fine arts classes offered during high school present a sense of freedom and creativity to the students. "I took Photography as my fine arts class in sophomore year. It was a form of art that let me express myself. I can see that it will benefit me in the future because I actually took the class. I now have the background from high school to help me," Tina Lam said (06). Fine arts has been offered as a curriculum ever since the beginning. Joan Lang, a sophomore who took drama said, "I took drama because of the fact that I've been taking it for eleven years outside of school. It's one of my favorite things to do. Since the school offered it as a class, I took the opportunity right away." Ulitmatley, whether or not students had a creative mind, fine arts classes helped them explore their artistic side. The classes helped student's develop talent and their dreams for the future because in fine arts, anything is possible.

Ever imagine becoming a television super star? Or directing a music video, soap opera, or a high budget film? Well our school had a video class that could help you get started or at least point you in that direction. There were also many courses that were offered so that the students had opportunities to become experts in technology; like computer operations, computer technology as well as digital photo. In the video class, you learned everything from how to use a camara all the way to editing a video. When asked a video student a couple questions on why she decided to take this course, Erica Dominguez (07) said, "I took this class because I heard it was interesting and fun, so I wanted to find out for myself." Another student who was in a computer class, Catherine Alveraz (07) stated what she enjoyed most about Computer Operations. Her response was, "I like the different programs we learn and how to use them and apply them to our own skills." In the Technology courses, you will learn how to create your own web site, explore around in the other software, and at the same time you could improve on your basic typing skills.

"I think that techonology is very important these days because of the fact that we use it everyday. I also think that is important because it helps make our lives easier. If we didn't have technology the world wouln't be the same as it is now. We wouldn't have phones to comunicate if there was any sort of problem." Zaki Farid (06)

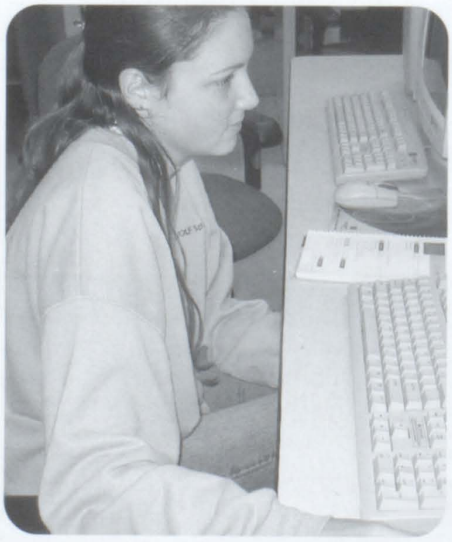
"I'm just trying to get through this class without having difficulties at the end of this school year," exclaimed Amanda Morse (07).

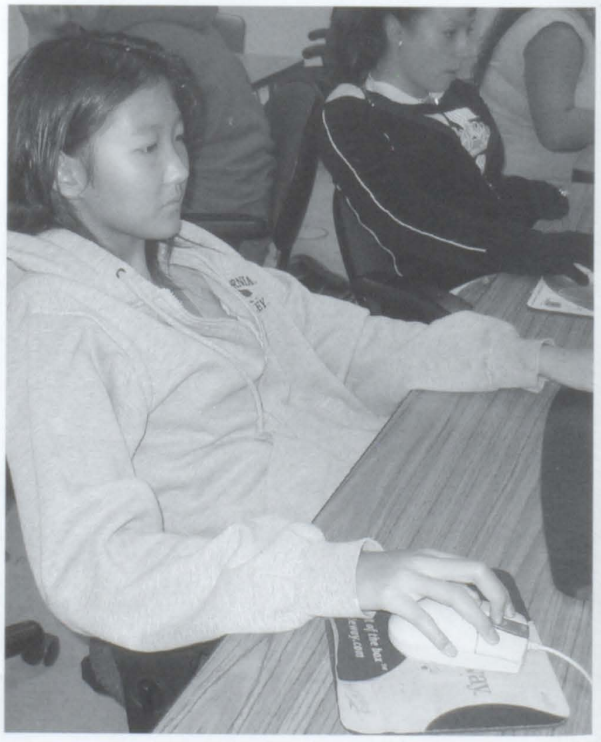
In computer class, Vicki Tu (07), diligently works on her assignment that was due the next day she stated, "Computer Operations helps me with typing and learning how to use the computer and Microsoft Words."

How can technology help me in life.

"It can help me in the future giving me a better job," stated Bryce Rocklage (07).

"Technology can help me better because it can also educate me in life," exclaimed Najeem Mirzada (08).





Samantha Chu (06) and Jessica Au (06) are working diligently, correcting spreads before the first deadline. They tried their best to make the yearbook fantastic.

We caught Vanessa Mielesko (07), Saneh Singh (07), Danielle Carrison (07) and Andrea Trisler (07) getting ready to start filming a video that has to do with self-defense for Mr. Martinez class.

Jonatan Calvo (07) exclaimed, "I like everything about computer technology because I love to work with computers."

"Without technology this world would be slow and boring," said Saundra Perez (07).

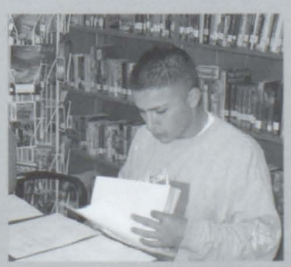
> "The experience that technology gives me will help me find a job I will like."

— Zeshan Nusrat (06), when he was asked how technology can help him in the future.

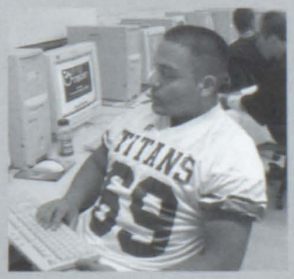
technology and daily life

Exploring the choices for what career he would like in the future, Martin Villagomez (05) stated, "I'd like to find out what I would do later on in life and without technology I wouldn't be able to do that."

Fixing books on the shelves, Kevin Prasad (05) is learning how to deal with daily life and technology. "People would have less opportunities to get their jobs because everything has to do with computers and electronics."



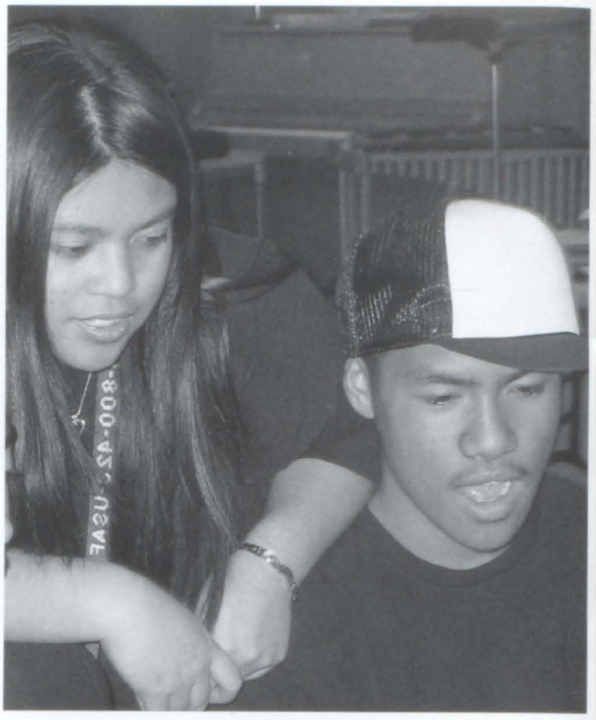
Reading about how to fix computers, David Mercado (05) stated, "Without technology this world would be a mess and it would be harder for people to move around because the world we live in is controlled by computers."



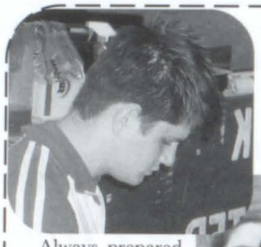
In the computer lab, Daniel Terrazas (05) working on his senior project and said, "Technology and daily life go together because you use your cell phone every day as well as other computerized objects."

One of the best trumpets in the Kennedy band, Sara Grimm (05), worked hard and was determined to keep her spot as one of the best through out the year.

Practicing their choir piece, "Something New to Sing About", Melissa Marcaida (05) and Josh Corpuz (05) concentrated really hard to perfect it.



Both in choir and band her senior year, Amanda Vargas (05) sang her heart out. There were many other courses she could have taken but she chose band and choir. "I chose to do both band and choir senior year, to further my knowledge of music because I plan to be a music teacher one day," said Vargas (05).



Being one of the best singer, Josh Small (05) was also excellent as a pianist.

Always prepared for instructions, Cherrylin Lorenzo (07) loved being in beginning band.

Music

Play it loud and sing it proud

The pressure was on. Frustrated and annoyed, Mr. Sterling and many students tried hard to perfect songs for their concerts. They often couldn't get the notes, but someone would always save the song. Once warmed up, everybody got into his or her groups to practice. The sopranos sang wonderfully in the higher keys as the altos backed them up in the bass notes. "Music is fun, it gives me a hobby, and I have enjoyed it almost all of my life," stated Nicole Flores (07). Together, the choir sang in harmony. Beginning choir, chamber chorale, beginning and advanced band have been taught for many years. Out of all the electives that Kennedy offered, why choir? "I loved to sing," replied Megan Leigh (05), "I like to sing because it was something I had enjoyed doing since I could remember." The class was over and another day of hard work and determination had paid off, and so they continued through the year with the daily warm-ups and practice that took them to the top and to Disneyland for a competition in the Spring. Together, the musical groups played in unity at their concerts and competitions with nothing but music in their hearts. It took work to get to where they were but in the end it was all worth it.

In Mr. Sterling's class, Crystal Capas (05) sang her heart out with her wondrous voice.

"I have a passion for singing" said Ronn Rios (07) as he sang in room 150. Having a passion is what got him in; passion and confidence.

STUDENT'S HELPING The Community

DECA and Peer Advocates

Everyone knew the football, the basketball, and the soccer players, but hardly anyone knew that there were students around that made an even greater impact on them than the athletes. These students were the members of DECA and Peer Advocates. The Peer Advocates' goal was to help other students with their problems. Many students felt uncomfortable with talking to counselors so the Peer Advocate program was made. The class was dedicated to training the Peer Advocates how to council and mediate conflicts and other important skills such as nonverbal communication. "I take these skills I learn with me everywhere. Not only do I use them when helping other students, I use them when I am having problems too. It's helped me to understand other people," said Alexandria McDonald (06). It helped them with their people skills and taught them things that would help them for the rest of their lives. DECA's goals were also to help people but in a different way than the Peer Advocates. DECA helped many families and organizations outside the school. They raised money and sent it to organizations such as the Ronald McDonald house. They had other projects they did, like Adopt-A-Family, where they raised money for families that couldn't afford to have nice holidays. They provided a whole Thanksgiving dinner to one family and bought Christmas presents, foods, and even decorations for another family. Both groups were dedicated to helping and made a tremendous effort at making a difference in the world.

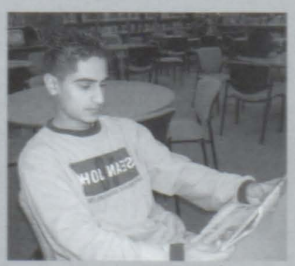
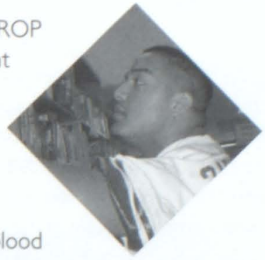
Looking at the classified section of the newspaper, Juwad Said (06) looks for a car to buy and said, "If I have car trouble later in life I will be familiar on what to do."



Looking onto our future

a look into the future



Ever wonder what you're going to do for a career? That's where ROP helped out. It gave students a chance to explore all sorts of different job types. Such as; auto body, medical, and culinary, and advanced computer classes. In auto body there was hands on learning on how to fix cars, such as fixing a dent, painting, and masking. "There is a lot of male bonding that goes on," says an auto body student Daniel Terrazas (05). In medical assisting class, basic skills on health care were developed. A student could learn how to taking blood pressure to CPR. "Even though this class is not a real job, it can still prepare for the future in case you decide to work in the medical field," says a medical assisting student Cynthia Blest (05). In culinary baking, students learned how to cook different types of food including how to substitute ingredients. It also helped students to be more comfortable in exploring their creative culinary side. Many students took this class so they can be able to cook for there family members as well as their close friends. "My favorite part is that you get to move around and be active," stated Santos Mercado (05).

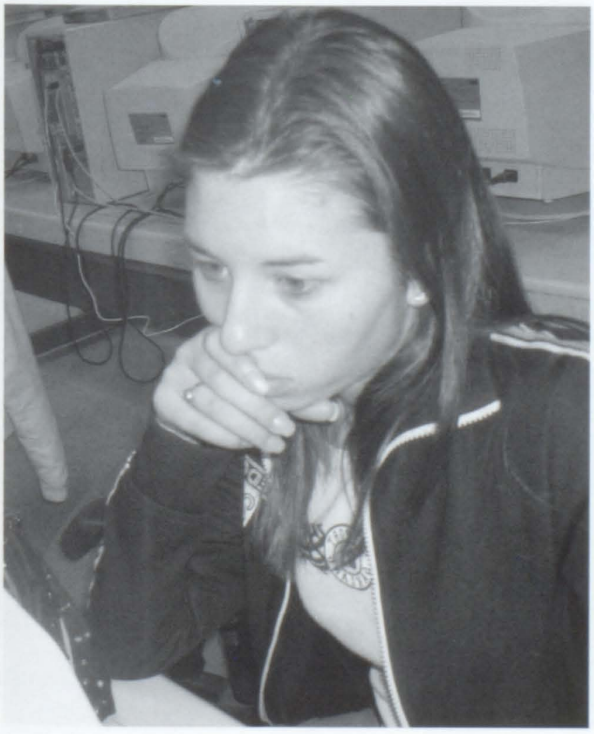
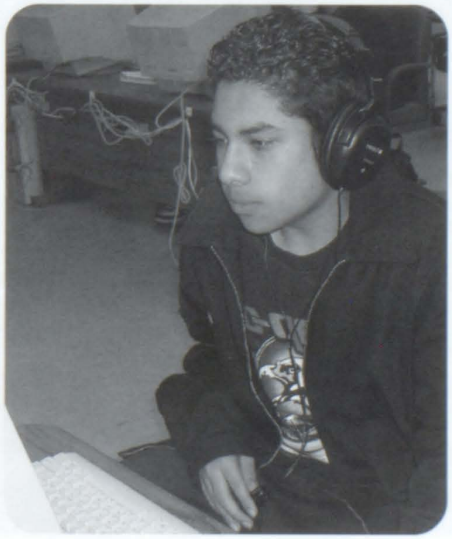
"My favorite part is just the fact that I get to work on cars," commented Jesus Villalvazo(06).

Autobody is one of the most popular class for students. After finishing sanding and painting the car, Andrew Pacheco (06) exclaimed, "It feels good to see my finishing project after working so hard on it. I couldn't have done it without the help of the guidance of my teacher."





Tara Pascale (05) in web class working on learning how to make web pages said, "Web class is a new class where I learned something new and I like how it helps me use a computer."

In computer technology, Marvin Velasquez (07) stares at the screen thinking what to put into his work for the day. "I like to learn and use Powerpoint, Microsoft, and Excel," he commented.

Senior Project

Getting Prepared

"You guys won't graduate if you don't pass this class!" Mrs. Vasconcellos warned the class. The thought of not passing or graduating had come across most of the seniors' minds. Created only last year, Senior project had become one of the main focus of the senior class. It had taken over their lives, absorbing every ounce of their free time. Michelle Baker (05) exclaimed, "For the past semester, I've been spending most of my time working on Senior project in all of my classes and even after school." The required class is divided into groups in which they were required to work with each other to create their project. The seniors came up with ideas as creative as possible to benefit the community. "I really don't think that the class would be so bad if they weren't so sketchy on the details of the class," said Natalia Mijangos (05). In order to complete the class, the groups were required to present their project to a target audience. The entire project is composed of a research paper, a website, and a second type of visual in which they instructed their audience on what and why their subject was important. The members of the group chose the subjects that were chosen by the teachers. This class gave out to the public and expanded their minds to variety of things. It taught them useful things like making websites to learning how to work with different people. Senior project was a great way to get experienced of the real world and to be prepared for the future.

"Senior Project . . . . . ugh! All I have to say to all the poor unfortunate juniors, pass it the first time because you really don't want to do it again! I have to admit that you will learn something about your topic. Listen to your advisors. But be warned, some are more complicated than others. Don't worry though because you will survive!" advised Sara Grimm (05).

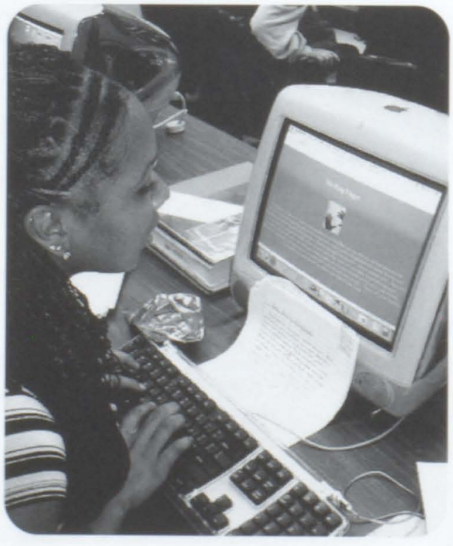
Working single-handedly on the website, Shelia Coleman (05) put her last touches on her website. "I worked on it for several days straight, but it was worth it since I finished early."

Helping one of his students, Jovito Guiterrez (05) and Mr. Engle, taught what was needed to be done to finish his work. "All he needed was to change a few fonts and add some work cited," stated the teacher.

Worst memory of Senior Project

"Making the website was hard because there were so many functions and utilities to learn." Kady Quintana (05)

"When it was time to present it to our client, our video didn't work and it was frustrating." Joe Delcoure (05)



For visual presentation, Ray Radcliffe (05) showed an example of a stringed-instrument to his advisors.

In room 148, Katherine Ward (05), Cassi McKean (05), Jennifer Quintana (05), and Jessica Cannon (05) continued working on their senior project. They needed to pull it together because projects were due soon.

Best memory of senior project

"It'd be when we had to teach high school students math, that was my best memory." Sukhbir Sidhu (05)

"The best memory of senior project is 'the end' of it, which I liked a lot." Aarti Kumar (05)

Kristina Petrisch (05) searched diligently for information for her senior project. "Theres so many websites but so little time," stated Petrisch.

"In our group, we had fun and at the same time we learned a bit more of each other, the topic, and time management. This might be what the administration wanted us to do and achieve.

Vanessa Ramirez (05)

Pros and Cons

"I liked senior project because my group consisted of people I wanted to work with," said Julio Enriquez (05).

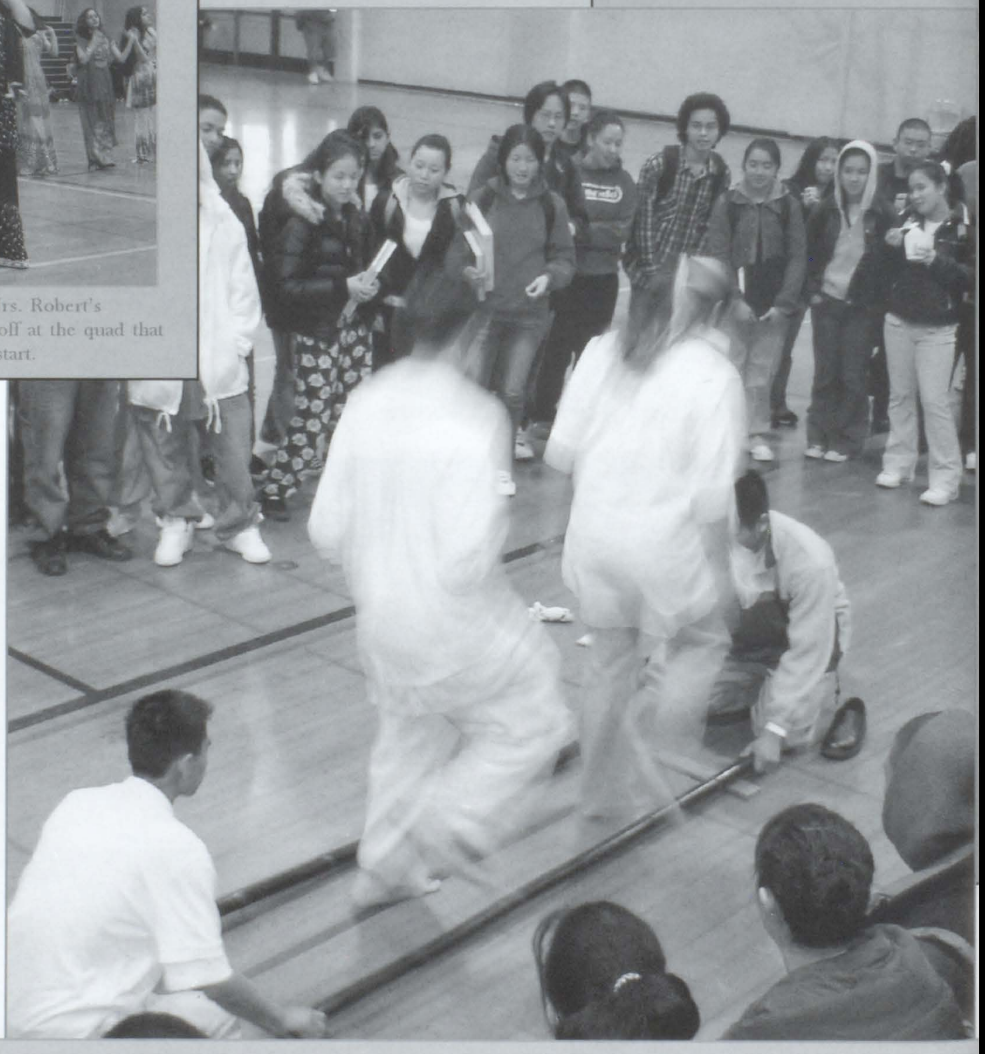
"What's the worst part of senior project? The whole thing is what's worst about it!," exclaimed Maulik Chaudhari (05).

"Senior Project was a class I won't forget. It taught me things that can't be taught elsewhere," stated J.R. Manuzon (05).

"The worst part for me is writing the essay. I'm just not good at writing an eight page essay," quoted Pyae Kyan (05).

1. International week was started off with Ms. Robert's Multicultural dance class dancing in the quad. Student's of different races all joined in to participate. 2. The second day of International week was for United Hip Hop. Here, this student shows his skills off. 3 The Hawaiian/Polynesian club performed on the third day of the week. Jacob Baptista (05) stated, "I just had fun overall, I was happy I got to share part of my culture." 4. The Afghan club performed on the fourth day, enjoying the spotlight that afternoon. 5. Extending to another week for the clubs to perform, the Latino club also shared their culture. The club performed in pairs, dancing to their festive music.

Practicing way before International week came, Mrs. Robert's Multicultural dance class performed their dances off at the quad that sunny afternoon. International week had a great start.



Singing solo on Thursday of International week, Michael Parks (06) performed his song "I Miss You" with his ukelele. Parks stated, "I composed the song myself. It was great singing it in front of everyone, although I was a bit scared."

International Week was time of the year when all cultural clubs gathered to show off their spirit and pride of their culture. It was also one of the most anticipated event of the year. Each day was hosted by a club and they decorated the school and laid out several activities: like dances and singing to their fellow students at the quad. As the days got closer to the rally, club commissioners stressed out trying to get things organized and ready for the rally. "This year, we have eleven clubs performing at the rally, ELEVEN! It's the most we had in the previous years, so on club day, we had to extend it to two weeks, " explained Megha Patel (05). The club commissioners were not the only ones stressed out about the rally. The clubs practiced after school and weekends just to get the steps down. They found getting everybody together in one place was quite difficult because students had other activities they were in. Eventhough things were stessed and confusing international week was a great success.

"This year is better than last year because I know everybody and we really just had fun doing it," stated Madina Omar (07).

"It was hard work organizing and trying to get this dance different from previous years, but with all the effort we put in, it all paid off," commented Wais Hamid (05) as they performed in the gym that week.

International week

"We didn't come all over on the same ship, but we're all in the same boat."

Bernard M. Baruch

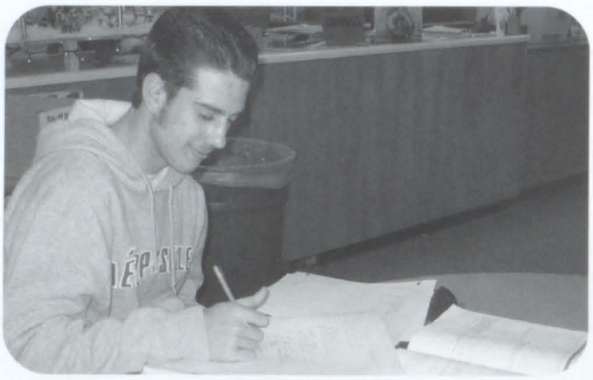
As Isheen Herrera (05) annouced the meeting had begun, Lita Vo (06) carefully took notes on what was happening at the meeting. Both of them were working as a pair.

Silently, paying attention to the important news, Manpreet Kaur (05) and Devi Ramachandran (05) watched other members of ASB as they discussed their opinions about other issues.

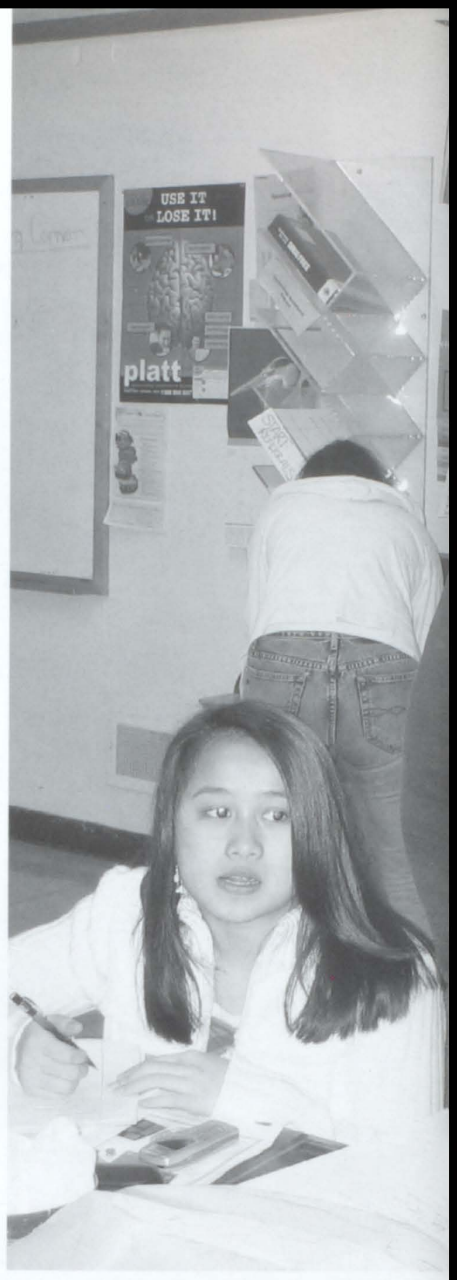
A world with ASB

Pondering about ASB, Philip Tieu (06) said, "I enjoy taking pictures for the slide shows. It is so much fun."

At a meeting, Blake Wu (08) stated, "My favorite part of ASB is gaining leadership and working with others."



Taking notes on the upcoming fundraisers for the school and classes, Jordan Anaya (05) stated, "ASB is a fantastic way to get involved with the school and students. Working with people is my favorite."



"ASB is a great chance to meet people and make a difference in the school," exclaimed Lisa Cau (08).

Favorite part of ASB

"My favorite part of ASB is the people. Almost everyone gets along and there is a great atmosphere," exclaimed Crystal Bruno (05).

Concentrating extra hard on what her response, Asuka Yamaguchi (07) said, "I like planning rallies and dances, there are so much that goes into an event."

During a meeting, Leticia Ruiz (07) commented, "I enjoy planning for the next upcoming events. It's great being around people who help you out with everything."

Thinking of something interesting, Adrienne Karalius (05) stated, "Getting things done and not worrying about it later is my favorite. I also like organizing things and being involved."

Associated Student Body was the most productive group on campus. They did everything from organizing rallies to keeping the school intact. It was a great group that gave people spirit and the experiences of leadership." ASB was a great association that taught me many things for the future," said Samantha Chu (06). The members of ASB had to deal with a lot of stress and obstacles in order to plan many activities for the school. ASB was like having your own business which required dedication. There were endless planning and chaos that went into an ASB meeting. A member Kharren Co (06) said, "A lot of people talk at once but usually the meetings are very organized." At the meetings, people interacted and made new friends. When students were sleeping on a school day, the members were planning for the next upcoming event. That was a typical day for the members . Prom and dances were one of the many events they had to plan. They also had a chance to go to different schools and study some of the things that they did. They studied how they organized things. At the end of the year, ASB had a special banquet for their hard work. They gathered together to receive a school letter for their dedication. Liliana De La Pas (06) said, "I'm glad I got recognized for my hard work, being in ASB is a blast and I'm glad I was part of it." ASB was a hard working group and it took patience to work with many things at one time. These members obtained these skills and because of this they were considered as one.

the stresses of ASB

"Being in ASB is great because I get to help out the school and make a difference," stated Roger Sarvate (05).

Gabriella Medina (07) said, "It can be stressful, but it's fun and a great experience.

Thinking about the next upcoming event Iqbaljit Singh (05) said, "ASB meetings could be hectic, but in the end we actually have things done. At the same time meetings can be a lot of fun. ASB plans a bunch of meetings, rallies, dances, and fundraisers. It's a place to be updated with the latest news around the school."

Ben Reisler (07) sat silently while listening to the class presidents informed them with news of updates and rallies and dances.

Wondering about ASB, Raminderdeep Sidhu (05) remembered all the chaos that went on in the previous meeting. They had so much to do, but so little time to finish. Sidhu exclaimed, "The meetings seem to fly by so fast as we all plan and discuss our opinions."

How has clubs affected you?

"Cleaning the school actually made me feel a lot better about being involved in our school and the enviroment. I really enjoy being in Project 540 because of all the helping I can do," replied Kharren Co (06).

"Being able to play with kids has always been something that I've enjoyed doing. Being in this club has taught me how to care for people that I don't know," said Jennifer Tu (07).

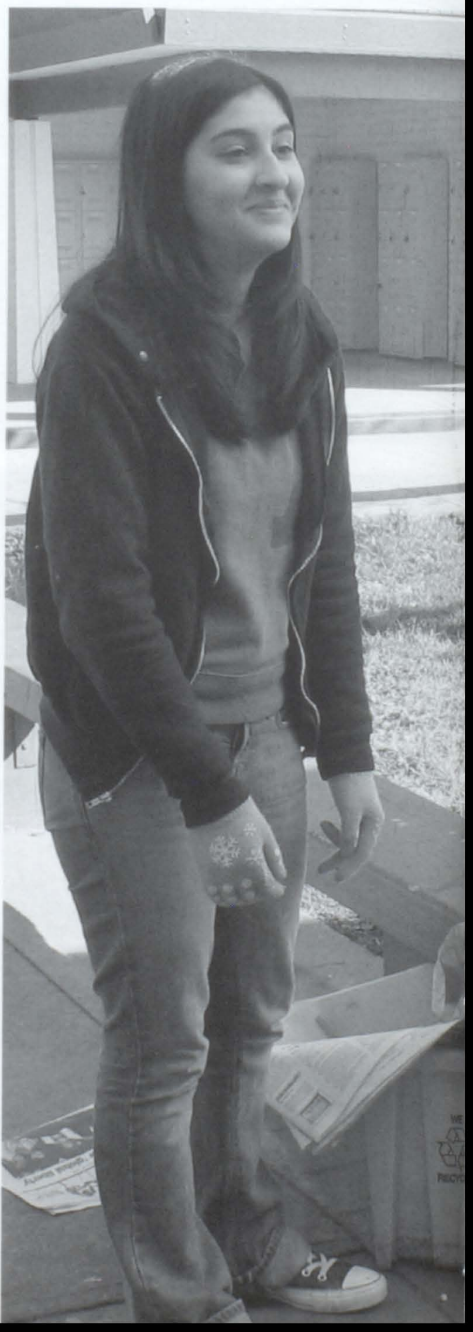
"I never really met as much people like I did while being in club Interact. I enjoyed meeting new people and meeting people from other schools," said Darlene Lacson (07).

"Since this is now my junior year I really liked the fact that I have been involved in many things such as KCK, I really enjoyed doing what I can to help people," stated Claude Quebec (06).

"Even though I had to spend a good amount of my free time cleaning the school, it was worth it, because it helped the school look better and become a better environment."

Li Zhou (06)

Gazing at the scenery, Krishna Patel (06) enjoyed cleaning up the environment and the school to making it a better place for everyone.



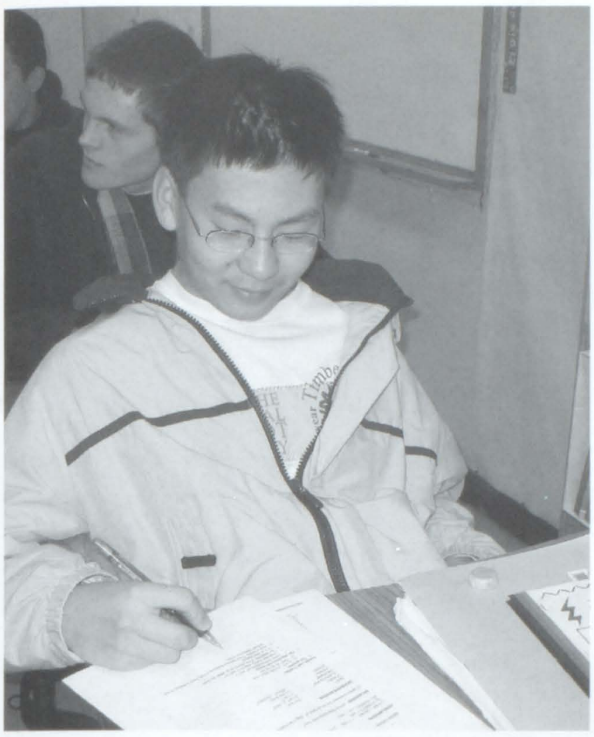
What made you join a club?

"Knowing that I could help other people really makes me happy," said Philip Wong (06).

"I love to help the environment and the people as well," stated Viet Nguyen (07).

When recycling, Vanessa Mieleszco (07) and Jessica Andrews (06) talked about what else they can do to benefit the school.

Enjoyed recycling garbage, planting plants, and crushing cans, Neelab Roashan (06), loved to help beautify the school. "Helping the school made me feel satisfied, knowing that I've tried," stated Roashan.



Picking up garbage while thinking how to improve Kennedy, Carae Navarro (08) quoted, "This is my favorite way to contribute to the school and it helps me stay in shape for my man."

At a 540 club meeting, Michael Gaw (06) carefully took notes on the next volunteered activity. "Project 540 helps the school in so many ways and I'm glad that I can be a part of it," stated Gaw.

Gerry Hoencke's (06) second year in Project 540 has taught him more then ever. While students were conversating in there homerooms, Gerry was out with other club members, going from class to class to recycle. His effort has showed how much he cared about this school. "I like to be in this club because it looks good on my application for college," responded Hoencke.

A world without clubs?

"If the world didn't have clubs, I wouldn't have as many friends and associates as I do now," said Mathew Stem (06).

"If clubs didn't exist in the world I wouldn't have excuses to why I come home late," exclaimed Flourence Yuen (07).

CLuBs

Doing something meaningful

Kennedy was filled with a variety of clubs, which were very productive and were filled with a diversity of students. In every club, you were able to meet many students from all over Fremont that were helping the community for the same purpose that you are. The clubs went from cleaning the school to benefiting the community. Each club did something distinctive and meaningful. For example, Interact Club contributed by raising money for the Salvation Army and by gathering toys for Toys For Tots. Aartie Kumar (05) stated, "Interact Club makes me feel good about what I have done for the community. It made my life meaningful." Project 540 was another popular club that everyone wanted to join. They came up with ideas that made the school a better place for students and teachers. They tried to improve the school to the best of their ability. Kwan Yee Chung (07) stated, "Every Wednesday I helped the school by going around from class to class to collect paper that needed to be recycled, by doing this I feel that I helped the teachers and the school." Kids Cheering Kids (KCK) was another club that was like no other. Having those clubs on campus taught students to put more interest and effort into helping the school and the community. The clubs also helped the students gain a sense of responsibility in their lives. It helped them gain experience that will help their future. All the clubs taught student something that you can't learn anywhere else. It was a place for students to gathered together to make a difference.

Lori,
The memories that I have had in the past couple of years are irreplacable. You have affected who I am today for the better. From your pacifer to my swishy pants. They say people lives are pre-determined. The path I was put on was obviously to meet you and have some of the best times of my life. So we must continue on our path and meet new people on our seperate ways. So bring to the future what we remember in the past. So always remember me for I will not forget you. Have fun with your life.
From me, your friend your family
Jeremy

Jeremy,
Hey Mr. well you know what we're finally out of here. I'm so glad that you stayed with us you know it wouldn't have been the same with out you. I know that we have had our times where we didn't get along but I just want you to know that I will always be here for you no matter what. Well best of luck in every thing you do. don't ever forget me and I know that I can never forget you Jeremy. Peace out fool you have been there for me and helped me through so much; i am so thankful to have a friend like you, when i get into trouble you are always the first on there, and the one i turn to , it feels good to actually know someone cares. We have so much fun together and i hope it never ends, but i know its all just begining, i dont think i could have made it through high school without you, thanks for getting me through it. you know i love you, and you will always be my bestfriend.
Love ya
Lori

There are no possible words or phrases to use to express our loss of someone so great. Regardless of how long you knew Alejandro, whether it was years, months, weeks or days, he left an impression on all of us that will last forever. He was the type of person who loved and accepted everyone for who they were and nothing less. His laugh, that smile, those jokes and that face its all the little things that will be missed forever. It's like a part of you is left empty and can only be half filled with the memories that remain. You never realize what you have until it's gone. So be sure to hold onto your loved one's. Life is a very fragile gift that many of us take for granted. It's sad to say that it takes a death to realize how important one person can be. Let's use this tragedy to help us open our eye's to take a look out and see what truly matters in life. As hard as it is to except his loss, we must move on, but without ever forgetting him. He will forever remain in the hearts of us all. We miss and love you so much, Alejandro. May you Rest In Peace...

With all our Love
Joy and Mert

My Dearest Christa,

It is hard to believe that 18+ years have gone by and you are now graduating from high school---WOW! And, "CC", even though you graduate as a K.H.S. "Titan" like your Mom (GO I.H.S. "Vikings" Class of 1976), I could not be more excited for you! Your Mom and I are so very proud of you because we know how much of a struggle at times it has been for you. Yet, you have hung in there, worked extremely hard at your studies and, ya' FINALLY made it! WAHOO!!! "Ya' naw what I mean??"

Christa, you have been such a blessing to your Mom and I, a true gift to us from God! You definitely have inherited your mom's beauty--both inside and out; and, most importantly, you have followed her example in becoming a fine young Christian woman who strives to put our heavenly Father God and our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ at the center of her life. No matter what the future holds, stay out of the fast lanes of destruction and, instead, stay on that "narrow road" that Jesus is leading us on (Matthew 7:13-14) toward reaching our eternal life in heaven. And, please, someday, share the gift of your beautiful singing voice (that you inherited from me....uh, O.K., actually, Mom again).

Hey, at least you have inherited some of my better qualities: "James Bond eyebrows" (right side), a wacky sense of humor with the ability to laugh so hard you almost pass out, and, superior fishing skills (although, over the years, I have intentionally let you catch more fish then me to build up your confidence---sorry).

As you head off to college, Christa, be prepared to face new, sometimes tougher, challenges as you strive for your baccalaureate degrees in ASL and Business. Again, I encourage you to hang in there, work hard, and set a goal to graduate in your early twenties. Your Mom and I will be behind you all the way----GO FOR IT!

Christa, your Mom and I love you so very much---you are truly our little angel!

God bless you!

Love,

Dad (a.k.a. "Dad-dah")

Treasured moments

I asked you, the yearbook staff, to write down what you think of me and yearbook. Here are some of the comments. (I think all of you were feeling sorry for me for some reason. They were very sweet and I really do appreciate them).

"When I hear Mrs. Clark I think of someone fun, outgoing and loving. Yerbook is a real fun class. Everyone is like family in there."

"As I hear Mrs. Clark's name, I think of "Is that spread done?"

"Mrs. Clark reminds me of Little Cindy Lou Who from Whoville."

"When I hear Mrs. Clark, I think of something cheerful, she usually has that smile on her face."

"Mrs. Clark is a pretty cool teacher, except for the fact that she gave me gray hairs!"

"When I think of Mrs. Clark, I think of a fashionable, fun loving teacher who is always here to help her students."

"Mrs. Clark =MOM"
-Clai Sibley

4 boys and 31 girls in yearbook with more personality than I could believe. I know the road was quite rocky at times, but we got through it and what a product we have created. I do hope all of you have learned something from this class. If it is just being on time with deadlines, that would be great! Be proud and always remember to work hard and keep smiling! Dee Clark :)

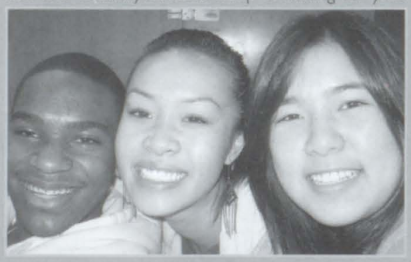
Precious has the best attitude and smile. She is hired for next year! Get ready, it's just around the corner.

What are these girls up to? Stacey and Precious rejoice as the last deadline is here. And of course they acknowledge how cool Mrs. Clark is.

Each one of you has been an asset to yearbook. I do hope to see you next year. But this picture portrays you all relaxed. NOT true for most of the year!

Cuter than pie! The yearbook is what it is because of you. I believe in each of you and sorry to see Samantha and Jessica leaving us. I wish you good luck and Clai.....yearbook camp is waiting for you!



Time flies when you are having fun! Jessica and Roanne think it is time to relax, but I have a surprise next week!

Kim misses Ashlee but works hard to keep up the good work. I can't wait to see you next year.

Tara you started the yearbook and finished it! Great Job! Be proud!

Once again I (Mrs. Clark) am trying to explain the importance of something and someone is listening. YEAH!

Taking a break from all the action of yearbooking! Yeah, right! Even if things got rough you all hung in. Keep it up!

Check this out. Goofy students? Actor/Actress? Not enough beauty sleep? Actually working? Fear Factor contender? YOU DECIDE.....I HAVE NO IDEA, BUT THEY ARE MY STUDENTS!

DECA

Dear Deca members,

We are so proud of each and every one of you. We want to thank you for all of the trips, and party memories that will last forever. Keep up the good work and we will see you in L.A.

Thank you to all the businesses for their help.

Congratulations to the Class of 2005!

Mija,

We are so proud to see you blossom into the wonderful young lady that you are becoming. As the butterfly struggles to leave its cocoon, you have faced numerous personal challenges, and overcome many fears on your way to accomplishing your dreams. We look forward to continue to be part of the many more wonderful dreams you will bring to life as you begin a new chapter.
Love Mom, Dad, A.J. and Alejo

Cely,

You are the star in our sky

DESIGN:
The Ledgend, Volume XXXX, was produced by the yearbook class at John F. Kennedy High School in Fremont, CA and printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Logan, UT. Representatives' Jane Roehrig, Heidi Bryant, and Jamie Mitchell and customer service advisor Terri Schnell serviced the account. We as a class developed the theme-YOU+JFK=ANYTING IS POSSIBLE between the months of July and August at the "Voting" themed yearbook academy after deciding through hundreds of other possibilities. The cover was designed by Isaac Routt and incorporated a 4-color Litho, which was debossed photo area rollercoated lamination, there were no applied colors/foil or applied grain. The end sheets were printed on 100-pound VC 01 White paper. The book is 200 pages are printed on 80-pound Bordeaux paper. The 2003 volume includes 40 pages in full color and no spot color pages.

PHOTOS:
Frames of color and frames of black and white film were shot by staff members using a Canon Power Shot A80, and a Canon 35 mm. Lifetouch also assisted in taking pictures. Herff Jones in Logan, Utah is processing and printing and Prestige Portraits provided the portraits.

COPY:
All body copy was set in size 10 AHJ Chantilly LH, and captions were size 9 AHJ Baskerville; headline fonts were set in AHJ Chantilly U B

COMPUTERS:
The Legend was produced using Adobe Page Maker 7.0 on 30 Pentium 3 and 4 PC computers and HP Scanjet 5500c and a Lexmark 1622. Pages were submitted to the plant on disk.

SPECIAL THANKS:
Thank you to all the companies and representatives who took their time to make the yearbook an immense project. Jane Roehrig, Heidi Bryant, and Jaime Mitchell with Herff Jones, Damon Crow with Prestige Portraits by Lifetouch, Terri Schnell, and Isaac Routt. We would also like to thank the students, staff and administration for their assistance and cooperation in the publication of the 40th volume of the yearbook. Without their patience and generous help with the yearbook, we would have been unable to successfully complete "YOU+JFK=ANYTING IS POSSIBLE"
